Survivors Tell How U-Boat Sank Ship

ROBIN MOOR VICTIMS GIVE GRAPHIC TALE

Chief Officer Says Submarine Commander Told Ship Was U. S. Vessel.

SEAMAN SPOKE ENGLISH

Claims Ship was Warned Not To Use Wireless After It Was Halted.

(By United Press)

LONDON — Survivors of the torpedoed United States merchantman Robin Moor told at Capetown today how a German submarine commander dressed in civilian clothes had ordered their ship sunk, knowing that it was American, and had left them in the middle of the South Atlantic, to be saved from death by thirst or starvation only by the chance passing of a British ship.

British press dispatches left no doubt, on the basis of stories of the survivors—seven passengers and 28 crew members—of the circumstances surrounding the sinking of the Robin Moor May 21.

Dispatches to the Daily Mail and the Exchange Telegraph quoted Chief Officer Melvin Mundy that the German submarine captain had promised to wireless the position of the sinking, so that the survivors' lifeboats would be found, but the dispatches said he obviously had no intention of doing so.

Mundy told the Daily Mail correspondent that he had warned the German captain:

"You will be sorry if you carry out your threat to sink our ship."

The German replied, according to Mundy:

"You carry supplies for my country's enemy."

Mundy told the Daily Mail that the men he saw on the submarine spoke English with a German accent, and that the submarine commander gave him bandages which bore German markings.

The dispatch quoted Mundy as telling how the submarine had signaled the Robin Moor by blinker lights and after learning its nationality had ordered it to halt, and not to use its wireless.

Boy's Bravest of All Robin Moor Survivors

Enjoys Watching Sharks and Eating Hard Tack on Perilous Trip.

Thirteen days in a wave-tossed lifeboat in the south Atlantic was just fun for Robbin McCullough, youngest (he's just two years old) and—by common consent—most stout-hearted of all the survivors of the torpedoed ship Robin Moor.

Unharmed and unafraid after a voyage that tried the courage of older men, the young sea-farer gave no indication that he had undergone any hardship when picked up with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. McCullough, by a British steamer.

The youngster, who had visited in Mansfield with his parents just before sailing for South Africa, even liked the hard tack on which the survivors largely subsisted, according to Associated Press dispatches. In fact, he kept murmuring "Robbin want tack," after he reached the hotel at Capetown.

Robbin liked everything about the trip in the open boat, and the only time he cried was when he was bored. That was when there were no fishes to watch. The "fishes," his father explained were sharks which followed the life boat four or five days until chased off by shoals of porpoise and tuna.

The boy, his father said, was the only one who had a change of clothing, when the crew and passengers of the Robin Moor took to life-boats after the commander of the submarine had given them 30 minutes to leave the ship.

"Mrs. McCullough took into the lifeboat a small case holding two bottles of whisky and Robin's clothes. She herself had nothing but slacks, a sweater and shorts; her skirt was torn up for handkerchiefs," McCullough said.

There were seven of the ship's eight passengers in that boat—three married couples and Robin—and five of the crew, McCullough said.

Robbin McCullough . . . by common consent, most stout-hearted survivor.

Their rations, limited by the submarine, were described as three-day rations. They included "four tins of potato-peel bread, four tins of Danish butter, and one tin of French biscuits."

"The boat had its own hard

Strike at Auto Parts Factory Threatens Lay-Off of Many Workers.

40,000 MEN AFFECTED

AFL Charges Rival CIO Union With Attempting to Raid Membership.

(By Associated Press)

A jurisdictional strike at a Detroit auto parts factory today threatened enforced layoffs for 40,000 workers in automobile plants which depend upon the struck factory for parts.

A Michigan state labor mediator declared that employes of Plymouth, Briggs, Ford and Dodge truck plants might be made idle unless there was a speedy settlement of the walkout of CIO United Automobile Workers at the Douglas and Lomason company. The UAW-AFL has a union shop agreement with the firm, and has contended that the rival CIO union has tried to raid its membership. This the UAW-CIO denied, describing the walkout as a "spontaneous vacation period."

While other strikes continued in important defense industries, CIO President Philip Murray issued a statement decrying what he termed "the current slander campaign against the loyal Americans who represent the CIO and its unions." He denounced as "malicious gossip" stories of "splits, purges and red-hunts" in the organization.

Labor difficulties broke out in a new quarter last night when 1,300 employes of two large Philadelphia sugar refineries walked out as a climax to a wage dispute. The AFL Longshoremen's association asked that the wages of laborers be increased from 63 to 80 cents an hour, with boosts of 10 to 20 cents for mechanics. The wage scale of the mechanics was not immediately made public.

With $500,000,000 worth of ship construction at 11 San Francisco Bay yards still tied up by a machanists' strike, Harvey W. Brown, AFL machinists president, made ready for a personal appeal to the strikers to return to their jobs.

The strike, now in its sixth week, involves about 1,200 AFL and 500 CIO machinists, who are asking

PREDICT SPLIT WITH GERMANS

Observers Believe Diplomatic Relations With Nazis To Be Severed Soon.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The view prevails in authoritative quarters in Washington today that diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany are likely to be completely severed before long.

It would cause no surprise in official circles in Washington if Germany should break off relations in retaliation for this government's action in demanding the withdrawal by July 10 of all Nazi consuls and propaganda agents in this country.

If Berlin does not go this far, it is expected that Nazis will order all American consuls in Germany withdrawn. There are 55 American consular officers in Germany at present.

Four Mansfield residents were injured in traffic accidents in and near the city yesterday and one of them was charged with illegally driving the car he had crashed.

John M. Ruby of 257½ North Main street, suffered severe lacerations about the face and head late yesterday when the car he was driving collided with a parked auto in front of the Phoenix hotel on North Main street.

Fred Tarr, of Brilliant, and Jay Burns, operator of the hotel, told police that Ruby walked south on Main street after the crash. Police and ambulance attendants found the injured man walking along

Fort Capuzzo Reached, Nazis Reinforce Line

Cairo Says Heavy Losses Have Been Inflicted on Axis Forces But Berlin Reports Destruction Of 100 Armored Units.

(By Associated Press)

CAIRO, Egypt—British troops in a surprise movement "made an initial penetration as far as Fort Capuzzo," just across the Egyptian border in Libya, and "then beat back determined Axis counter attacks by reinforcements hurried there from the Tobruk area," the Middle East command announced today.

The war bulletin said heavy losses were inflicted on the German and Italian troops who repeatedly assaulted the imperial forces.

Fort Capuzzo is opposite Salum, where fierce fighting appeared developing into a major battle following the start of the British offensive.

In East Africa, the imperial command said British forces captured an Italian rearguard position west of Lake Lakemti, in southern Ethiopia, taking 200 prisoners, four guns and 20 machine guns. In the Assab area, six Fascist officers and 180 men were reported captured.

British sources described the imperial offensive in North Africa as "still a local one for the moment" but that the operations were developing.

The German official news agency DNB said that up to noon today the British had lost 100 armored motor units and that the situation was developing favorably for the Germans and Italians. The Berlin radio, heard in London, said British tank losses totalled the strength of a regiment.

The Nazi high command was less specific, but said that the British tank losses "were increased considerably" and that fighting was continuing "with the use of strong forces on both sides." It asserted that Axis airmen were effectively blasting the British forces.

The Italian high command declared the British had sustained considerable losses in men and machines and 11 planes.

Reports from the front indicated the British were employing the tactics which proved so successful against the Italians last winter—lashing out at Axis communication lines with swift flanking thrusts by mechanized units.

One such unit was said to have stabbed 40 miles into Libya yesterday to rout an Italian column near Gambut, and there were unofficial reports that another British force had occupied Fort Capuzzo, just west of the Egyptian frontier.

Whether these operations were the beginning of a full-scale offensive was not clear, but it appeared to observers that General Sir Archibald Wavell might at last be ready for a showdown with the forces the Nazis have been building up in North Africa.

(In Berlin, the authoritative commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland said the strength of the forces the British were employing in the Salum region indicated a major battle was under way. This source expressed belief the British might be trying to break through the Axis lines to relieve their besieged garrison at Tobruk, 75 miles west of the Egyptian frontier.)

Say British Lose Much Material

ROME —(AP)— The Italian high command reported today that a violent battle, raging all day yesterday on the Salum front in North Africa, had cost the British considerable losses in men and tanks and 11 planes.

Italian and German forces, the daily war bulletin said, destroyed more than 60 tanks in a counter-attack against British mechanized forces which launched an offensive Sunday. (The Germans made this same claim yesterday.)

Axis bombing planes were said to have destroyed or damaged numerous other motor vehicles.

The Italians acknowledged that British warplanes had bombed the Libyan port of Bengasi, but did not indicate the results.

Fascist planes, the communque declared, attacked the oft-bombed

Sheriff Requisitions Two Station Wagons for 'Haul'

Week-End Round-Up of Transients Causes 'Jam' In Traffic Between County and Workhouse.

Richland County Sheriff Frank E. Robinson had to borrow two station wagons from County Surveyor Howard Sword today to transport 12 men to the Columbus workhouse as a result of a week-end drive by Mansfield police and railroad detectives on transients in hobo camps in the north end of the city.

Transportation facilities were strained to the breaking point as a result of the convictions of 18 hoboes and four Mansfielders on charges of intoxication by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court yesterday.

The transients were assigned to the sheriff's office for transportation on a state affidavit.

"Such assignments usually come in groups of twos or threes which we can ordinarily handle," Deputy Glen Freeman said, "but 12 were too many and we turned to the surveyor for assistance.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said that there was no concerted drive against the transients who were hauled into the city jail Sunday, in the course of regular duty.

Railroad detectives said that the hoboes had been loafing about the yards for the past few weeks and that the arrests were made to "clean up the situation."

E. J. White, detective for the Pennsylvania railroad, declared that the transients were usually intoxicated within an hour after they enter the city.

All of the men making the journey to Columbus were sentenced on charges of intoxication.

Most of the arrests were made on railroad property or near the railroad.

The men who made the novel expedition to Columbus were booked as Jack Lewis, Earl Rose, Thomas Urban, Daniel Pierson, Pete Ware, Charles Upright, Bert Cheney, William Lalley, and Mansfielders Joseph Dever, Pat Doyle, Joseph Gauger, and Ray Newton.

Dutch and Japs Say Trade Negotiations Bog Down.

BATAVIA, Java —(INS)— In a joint announcement, the Netherlands East Indies and Japan today admitted failure of trade negotiations but insisted that normal relations between the two countries would not be impaired as a result.

Kenkichi Yoshizawa, chief Japanese negotiator, announced he would leave Batavia on June 27. The failure resulted from Batavia's insistence that no goods could be shipped to Japan that might find their way into German hands as materials of war.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va.—(U.P.)—Reports by city and county authorities to state police on suspected sabotage and espionage were urged today by Superintendent John W. Bosworth of the West Virginia state police.

PROPOSES BAN

Ickes Would Stop Shipment of Oil on East Coast.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A complete ban on exports of oil from the east coast of the United States, without prior government approval of individual shipments, was proposed to the petroleum industry today by Secretary Ickes, defense petroleum co-ordinator.

The action followed close on the heels of the stoppage yesterday of a 240,000 gallon shipment of oil from Philadelphia to Japan, because of the threatened oil famine on the eastern seaboard.

TOLEDO—(U.P.)—Robert Hesselbart, 3, of Genoa, O., burned to death yesterday when he was trapped in an automobile after an accident on Woodville road, seven miles east of Toledo. An explosion of a gasoline tank set the car afire after it was struck in the rear and wrecked by another car during a rainstorm.

Pastor Keeps His Fingers Crossed After 'Investment' of Funds.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Whether All Souls Universalist church in Brooklyn gets a new coat of paint, come fall, lies largely in the hands of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"Invest it," he advised, "and return the proceeds in September.

A father-and-son combine said they'd bet their dollars on the baseball team's chances of winning the National league pennant. Others followed suit, and Mr. Greenway now reads the sports pages.

RAIN ENDS?

Weatherman Predicts Fair and Warmer For Tomorrow.

It hasn't rained yet today and that's pleasant news to Richland county farmers who have just finished watching five consecutive rainy days bring its total rainfall to 4.07 inches since June 1. What's more, if the weatherman is correct, tomorrow is going to be fair and warmer following cloudy weather tonight.

The temperature in Mansfield remained below the 16 year average of 68.9 yesterday with the high at 69, the low at 52 and the average 60.5.

Torrential rains fell in Noble county today, flooding and closing several highways. Between 4 a. m. and 9 a. m., 1.49 inches of rain deluged the vicinity around Caldwell and state highway patrolmen closed parts of routes 146, 147, 245, 78, 260 and 145.

Birth Rates For Nation Jump By 20,000 In 4 Months

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The birth rate in the United States is on the increase, the census bureau reported today.

Reports from 43 states and the District of Columbit indicate that 20,000 more babies were born here during the first four months of this year than in the corresponding period a year ago.

Heretofore, the census bureau has worried publicly from time to time about the declining birth rate, having determined that "barely enough children were being born to replace the present generation."

Today, however, it was found that "the nation's population is being reproduced at a greater rate than in the last decade and that there will be an increase of seven per cent in population per generation."

Miller Asks New Equipment Or Cut In Defense Training

Curtailment of the defense training program at Mansfield Senior high school unless the federal government allots funds for the purchase of new shop equipment at the school was proposed last night at a meeting of the Mansfield board of education by W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools.

The board approved a new schedule of defense classes to extend from July 1 through Sept. 20 at Senior high school and from July 1 to Aug. 9 at the Mansfield CCC camp.

Learning that other Ohio schools have already recieved new shop equipment from the government, Supt. Miller told the board he had written to the federal defense program representative in Columbus, pointing out that the Mansfield schools were among the first in Ohio to offer their shop facilities to the government and to ask for additional equipment.

The board of education submitted a request last Dec. 15 for nearly $60,000 worth of shop equipment, but so far has had no approval of funds from the federal government.

Miller said he had been informed that the first allocation of money for Ohio had been used and there would be no more available until congress sets up a new fund.

H. W. Arlin, president of the board of education, said he believed the government should at least provide funds for depreciation of shop equipment." The government pays the schools $560 a month for repairing and maintaining the shop equipment, but sets up nothing for depreciation.

No action was taken on the superintendent's proposal.

Crossing Elimination Delay Laid To Federal Government

Slowness on the part of the federal government in approving the contract for the construction of two grade-crossing eliminations on State Route 30-N in and just west of Mansfield was blamed today by Vance Grimes, Ashland division engineer, state highway department, for more than a week's delay in the projects.

Grimes said that although the state had awarded the contract almost three weeks ago to the Lombardo Construction company of Cleveland at $497,441.95, federal approval would require at least another week. The Cleveland firm's bid was $8,835 lower than that of three Mansfield contractors bidding together.

Lombardo has asked state officials to speed approval of the contract and had planned to move machinery to Mansfield a week ago yesterday. Delay in federal action, however, has prevented him from moving machinery yet, according to Grimes.

The division engineer said that contracts must be approved at a district office in St. Louis and finally in Washington. He said that he would notify the Lombardo company as soon as he received word from his office in Columbus.

The elimination project includes the construction of an overhead crossing where the Baltimore and Ohio railroad crosses West Fourth street, an underpass on the Erie railroad a mile further west on Route 30-N, and paving of the strip between the crossings.

Demands Release Of His Fiancee From Hospital

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—A hearing was scheduled today in common pleas court on the petition of the fiance of a four-times-divorced steel heiress for her release from Good Samaritan hospital.

Donald Palmer, the fiance whose occupation is a garageman, claimed that Mary Genevieve Andrews, the 35-year-old heiress, is held incommunicado in the hospital.

He obtained a habeas corpus writ yesterday for her release but deputy sheriffs were told her condition was such that she could not leave. Later, Dr. Meyer A. Zeligs told Common Pleas Judge Stanley Struble that Miss Andrews might suffer a breakdown if released.

Miss Andrews was granted a divorce here last April 4 from John Stanhope Mau. She has been married four times, twice to Mau.

CONTINUING: British Raid Germany 6th Straight Night

(By United Press)

LONDON—British bombing planes raided the German western industrial area for the sixth straight night last night after attacks on the German-occupied French invasion coast which started by daylight yesterday and did not end until dawn today.

Thus the first anniversary of the Vichy armistice with Germany was marked by the hardest and most sustained offensive of the growing Royal Air Force since the war began.

As the British planes ranged over occupied France and Germany, hurling bombs on factories, docks, storage plants and airdromes, they and home defense planes shot down 13 Nazi craft within 24 hours.

Three German bombers were shot down during the night, though only a few planes came over and they dropped only scattered bombs along the east coast and in western and southwestern England. Three Nazi fighter planes and a seaplane were downed in air battles last evening; seven German fighter planes had been destroyed in a British sweep over the English channel and northern France by daylight yesterday.

While formations of big new bombing planes were attacking industrial Germany during the night, coastal planes heavily attacked the invasion coast.

GAINS: British Take Hill As They Close In On Damascus

(By United Press)

LONDON—Allied forces have taken one hill dominating Damascus from the southwest and are storming another which dominates it from the southeast, it was said authoritatively today.

One Allied force was striking at the important Rayak air base in western Syria while another approached Beirut on the coast.

Authoritative informants said that there was a shortage of food in the Vichy troops' front lines in Syria but that ammunition seemed holding out.

It was indicated that attempts to negotiate a peaceful surrender of Damascus had failed.

British forces captured seven Vichy tanks and stores of ammunition at Saida, informants said.

It was said that the British had been going slowly and that the Royal Air Force had restricted its operations in hope that gentler methods would be effective.

Informants, discussing Vichy and Axis claims of damage to British warships off Syria, said that "odd hits" were to be expected in such operations but that it was doubted that, as claimed, a British cruiser had been sunk.

It was believed that two imperial columns which had started out from Iraq were nearing Aleppo in northwest Syria.

British Mediterranean base of Malta again last night.

Operations in East Africa were said to be hampered by continuing bad weather, though some action was noted in the Galla Sidamo region of western Ethiopia.

Amplifying the high command communique, the official Italian news agency Stefani said the Italian air attack on Malta had produced "frightful results." Considerable damage was done to drydocks and harbor works in the naval base and large fires were started, the agency said.

The British anti-aircraft defenses at Malta were described as weak. All Italian planes returned to base, Stefani said.

Petain Warns French of Long Suffering.

VICHY —(INS)— Chief of State Marshall Henri Philippe Petain in a radio broadcast to the nation today scathingly reproached Frenchmen who believe their national destiny is more tragic now than it was a year ago, in the hour of France's defeat.

In an address marking the first anniversary of his assumption of the post of government leadership, Petain declared:

"This is not the time for despair. You are not abandoned or betrayed."

But he warned that France will still suffer for a long time and that the French people have not "finished paying for their faults."

Nazis Deny Bombing of Irish Capital.

BERLIN —(U.P.)— Germany replied today to a recent Erie protest against the bombing of Dublin asserting that a careful investigation had failed to confirm that German planes were responsible.

The reply said that information placed at Germany's disposal by Erie authorities had been investigated carefully but it had failed to prove "with certainty" the responsibility of German planes.

Authorized German quarters said the reply had admitted the possibility that German planes have flown over Erie territory but, a spokesman said, there was no proof they had dropped bombs on Dublin.

'Hell's Corner' Takes War In Stride.

By W. T. YARBROUGH

DOVER, England —(A.P.)—In the year since the collapse of France—a year of continual exposure to bombs and shells—there has been a gradual change in this costal city from tense excitement to vast calm.

The peaceful air of "Hell's Corner" is astonishing and Dover is not nearly so battered as London or Plymouth or other hard-hit English cities.

Absence of holiday-makers on the beaches, where United States tourists sunned themselves at this time in years of peace, adds to the quiet of the place.

Air raid sirens cause no excitement and Dover takes a certain amount of pride in the fact that it has had more alarms than any other community. When British fighters roar low on their way toward the French coast, the people look up like spectators at an air show.

A wage agreement with the company calling for a boost of eight cents an hour for workers making less than $1.01 an hour, and seven cents for those earning more than that, was ratified yesterday by members of the Goodyear Local No. 5 of the United Rubber Workers of America (CIO).

NIAGARA FALLS STILL POPULAR

Newlyweds at Rate of 100 Couples a Day Visit 'Honeymoon' Falls.

By Special News Service.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—Even as in grandpa's time, many a young man's fancy still turns to thought of love and a Niagara Falls honeymoon.

Jokesters have had their fun, year after year, poking fun at young lovers and Niagara Falls. But year after year newlyweds head straight for this famed honeymooner's rendezvous.

The year 1941 is no exception. Hotel registers and guide services confirm that more than 100 newly married couples come to Niagara Falls daily.

They comprise only a small proportion of the 2,250,000 tourists the chamber of commerce expects to entertain this year, but, commercially speaking, are a very important percentage of the visitors.

The brides and bridegrooms somehow blend with the misty background of Niagara's might to give the city a distinction unrivaled by the nearby wheels of heavy industry, whirling day and night with the aid of power captured from the tumbling water.

These same whirling wheels supply a peculiarly fitting humming obbligato to the affectionate antics of brides and bridegrooms—1941 verison. For the nation's industry, busy with an expanding defense program, supplies the key to an increased supply of honeymooners.

Many of the visting couples were able to become "Mr. and Mrs." because increased demand for workers gave the bridegroom a job, and sufficient income to assume family responsibility.

These new husbands take their jobs, and their responsibilities, seriously. The martial atmosphere of the falls, tourist guides, hotel clerks, and long-time residents agree, has struck a serious note.

Newlyweds tarry but briefly at Niagara Falls. They seem more conservative, except to the mystification of Guide Robert Bailey, they "take more kissing pictures than ever before."

Otherwise, the scene remains unchanged.

American officials in close touch with the situation fear that new incidents are likely to occur before long, especially at sea, and they believe one of them probably will lead to a snapping of the already seriously strained relations.

In the event relations are severed, one of the Latin American nations probably will be requested to take over representation of this country's interests in Germany.

Apart from the improper activities of the German consular agents in this country, consular relations with Germany have been far from satisfactory for some time. The American consuls in Germany have experienced what they consider unnecessarily long delays in obtaining exit permits for American nationals who wish to come home.

The American government has known for some time that German consuls in this country were acting as virtual espionage agents, reporting on the progress of the American defense program and especially on the aid being sent to Great Britain.

Whether the government suspected any of the German consuls or other agents of plotting sabotage acts against American industry could not be ascertained.

Nazis Hit Back At U. S. 'Freezing' Action

BERLIN —(INS)— The German government today took what it termed "effective" retaliatory action against President Roosevelt's measure "freezing" Axis funds in the United States.

In line with previous indications that the Reich would adopt a "tit for tat" policy, a brief official announcement said:

"The Reich government this day has ordered necessary measures concerning the assets of United States citizens effective immediately in reply to President Roosevelt's action."

At the same time the semi-official news service Deutscher Dienst indicated strongly that despite reports to the contrary published abroad, Germany might not seek to retaliate for yesterday's order issued in Washington closing all Nazi consulates and various tourist and "propaganda" agencies.

Juanita Westerfield, 9, of rear 223 North Adams street, was cut about the head yesterday afternoon when she was struck by a truck driven by Edward Witkas of 123 North Walnut street on East Sixth street.

Witkas, who was not held, reported to police that the girl ran from behind a parked car and that he was unable to stop in time to avoid hitting her. The girl's head was struck by the left front headlight of the truck.

Ruby was released from the hospital this morning but was taken to Municipal court to face a charge of operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent. B. B. Boals, manager of the Page dairy, was the complainant and charged that Ruby had taken the car which he crashed on North Main street from the dairy's garage.

Ruby pleaded not guilty upon arraignment before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court. The case was continued until tomorrow morning.

Miss Julia Onda, 26-year-old nurse who was injured when her car skidded on the wet pavement a mile west of Iberia Sunday afternoon, was removed from Galion City hospital Monday night to her home in Chicago.

Nickels Saved In Quart Containers Pays For Daughter

CLEVELAND—(INS)—When the brand new six-pound-four-ounce baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Polonye grows up, her friends may jocularly call her the "nickel baby."

About a year ago, Poloyne, 25, and his wife, Julia, 21, began to save every shiny new nickel they got and put them away in quart containers.

Today Polonye walked up to the cashier's desk of St. John's hospital and inquired for his wife's bill and then paid $78—all in nickels. Poloyne said he still had 940 nickels of his original 2500, which, he added, was enough to pay the doctor.

RELEASE SUSPECT

CLEVELAND —(A.P.)— Arrested for questioning in the 1931 slaying of Councilman William E. Potter, a 32-year-old man was released last night when it was found he was serving a prison sentence at the time Potter was killed.

tack and 15 gallons of water, McCoulough said.

"The water was rationed to one glass each a day, half in the morning and half at night.

"Only Robbin could easily eat the stuff we had, and he preferred tack."

"It rained several nights; we still had water when we were picked up," McCullough continued.

The survivors said that luck of the sea, not any wireless notification of their plight by the submarine, saved them.

The Robin Moor's chief officer was praised by the passengers as the man who brought them to rescue after being torpedoed by a submarine declared German by ship officers and crew. His ankle broken, Melvin Mundy of Bethlehem, Pa., steered a 13-day course by a sketchy chart copied from his captain's map and was at the rudder when a British rescue ship was sighted.

"On this crude map Mundy carefully plotted our course," according to Ben M. Conn of New Haven, Conn., another passenger. "When we were finally rescued the captain of the ship which took us aboard examined Mundy's chart and found he was less than 10 miles off his final position."

That ship picked up two other boatloads and landed at Capetown, Union of South Africa, last night, with all of the missing from the Robin Moor, 35 passengers and crew members feared lost after the Brazilian ship Ozorio picked up the fourth boatload of 11 survivors, July 9.

Philip Williams, third secretary of the United States Embassy at Rio De Janerio, arrived in Washington by plane today with detailed eye-witness accounts of the torpedoing of the Robin Moor and pictures taken of her destruction by survivors.

Williams carried the depositions made by the 10 members of the crew and the one passenger who reached Recife, after being rescued at sea.

ENGLISH GLORY IN WAR DEEDS OF 2 BROTHERS

Cunninghams, Admiral and General, Prove Able Leaders.

BISHOP'S WALTHAM, Hampshire Eng.—(U.P.)—In this peaceful Hampshire village there is an ancient tree-shaded house which has a deep-rooted significance in England's past and present history.

It is the ancestral home of the Cunningham brothers whose victorious drives by land and sea in this war have swept the Italians from the Mediterranean and from Italian Somaliland. The brothers are Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham and Major-Gen. Alan Gordon Cunningham. The admiral is the oldest; he was born in 1882, and the general in 1887.

In the distant past, it is linked with some of England's earliest military history, for it was here that Henry II sat and discussed the Third Crusade. Here, too, Henry V stopped to write a letter before setting sail for the campaign that ended gloriously at Agincourt.

Just across the lawn are the ruins of a castle built in the 12th century by King Stephen.

The conquering brothers who have shown a common spirit in war—attended by the same success—have a rendezvous in the garden of the Palace House when the war is over.

This is what one who has known them for years says about them.

"When they come home together, they will make for the garden, coats off, sleeves rolled up. And then the rivals will set to work. They love gardening. Perhaps the general knows more about flowers than the admiral—they will argue this point.

"The admiral—he is 58—is of medium height, fair-haired, with a few streaks of gray showing now. His complexion is fair, weather-beaten, his mouth very firm but kindly, like his blue eyes. He is a little stouter than his brother.

"And the general? He is more lithe, but he has the same fair, graying hair, same eyes, a mouth as firm as the admiral's."

When they get together again here there will be great arguments about sweet peas and roses and terrific fish stories. The general will puff his pipe, and the admiral will cross his hands behind his back and take a firm stand. They have always been like that with each other, best of friends, best of rivals.

But rivals for the biggest flowers and biggest fish, the brothers agree on many things. One of the things they have in common is a dislike for towns and both of them rarely visit London.

Had family tradition been followed, they might have been dignitaries of the church instead of famous figures of the fighting services, for on both sides their family has the closest ties with the Scottish church.

FANS FUGITIVE

Deputy Strikes Out Prisoner With Single Pitch.

BOONVILLE, Mo.—(A.P.)—Deputy Sheriff A. W. Tally struck out a prisoner with a single pitch.

As the officer was placing his charge in the county jail, the man broke free and ran. Tally dragged a lock from a cell, wound up and let fly. The prisoner, hit behind the left ear, was knocked unconscious.

Secretary Slain

With few clues to work on, police in Washington intensified their search for the slayer of Jessie Strieff, 23-year-old war department secretary who was found strangled to death in a garage at the rear of a physician's residence. Miss Strieff's home was in Des Moines.

$1.15 an hour and double overtime pay. Their old scale was $1 and double time, and they have rejected a proposed agreement providing for $1.12 and time-and-one-half for overtime.

About 300 AFL machinists went on strike yesterday at the Piper Aircraft corporation at Lock Haven, Pa., where light aircraft used in civilian pilot training are manufactured. The company has offered a 10 per cent wage increase over its minimum scale of 50 cents an hour for skilled labor and 30 cents for semi-skilled, but the machinists demand a starting minimum of 35 cents for semi-skilled workers, to be increased periodically to 55 cents by the end of the first year, and a minimum of 75 cents for skilled employes.

Fourteen thousand employes of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, Akron, got higher wages under an agreement announced by the firm and the CIO United Rubber Workers. Production employes who had been receiving less than $1.01 an hour got 8-cent increases, while 7-cent boosts went to those who had been making more than $1.01. The new hourly scale ranges from 90 cents to $1.57 for men, and from 64 to 98 cents for women.

SEEK CONTRACT

Winners In Labor Board Election Seek Contract With Company.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— On the heels of their 270-106 national labor relations board election victory, officials of the United Automobile Workers union, (CIO) today prepared to submit a new contract to officials of the east side plant of the Lawson & Sessions company.

CIO employes conducted a three-day strike at the plant last week which terminated when both sides agreed to hold a NLRB election.

PROJECT AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

U. S. Air Base In Newfoundland Rises Despite Building Difficulties.

(By Special News Service)

QUONSET, R. I. — Despite the challenge of unusual difficulties, a new United States naval air station is being carved out of a Newfoundland wilderness at a speed that has placed the project far ahead of schedule.

Both the building of the Atlantic outpost of Newfoundland's Argentia peninsula and the vast, permanent naval air establishment on Rhode Island's sandy Quonset Point are being directed from headquarters here, under the guidance of Commander R. V. Miller, civil engineers corps, U. S. N.

Here are some of the difficulties faced by those building the Newfoundland naval station:

Conquest of a thick blanket of peat which covered the site;

Urgent need of extending a railroad into the station;

Construction of roads in a district devoid of highways; transfed from the site, as a unit, of a colony of 125 families;

Extension of wharves and water supply;

Construction or housing facilities for all workmen, including natives;

Importation, with scant transportation facilities, of men and material.

The navy found as residents of the 3-square mile peninsula the descendants of Irish settlers who came there in 1642. Their small number furnished a clue to difficulties of wrestling a living from the limited opportunities offered by fishing and farming.

Rather than break ties established throughout three centuries, the little community will be moved as a unit to a new location. As good or better homes will be provided—better, probably, because they will be new. About 60 per cent of the families already have been moved in navy vehicles to temporary homes, pending selection of a permanent site. Uncle Sam will pay the bill.

PROBE FIRE

Launch Investigation Into Blaze That Claimed Three Lives.

CHICAGO — (INS) — A three-pronged investigation was under way today to determine the cause of a fire which swept the Chicago Mill and Lumber company plant yesterday, resulting in the deaths of three firemen and injury to five others. Damage was placed at $75,000.

The firemen, Norris Coulombe, 34, George Michalski, 32, and Henry Bodenlos, 41, were asphyxiated when engulfed in smoke and flames by a mill dust explosion.

COUNCIL AT SHELBY OKAYS NEW PLAYLOT

Approves Lease of Property From Railroad Company For Recreation Spot.

SHELBY—Another link in the city's system of playgrounds here will be added when a lease is taken on the New York Central railroad property near the junction on North Broadway avenue.

City council authorized Mayor W. R. Morris to sign the lease at its semi-monthly meeting Monday night. The city will pay $25 a year.

The property will be cleared this month as soon as the papers are signed by railroad officials. It will serve as a playground for youths living in the northeast section of the city.

Ordinances to proceed with sanitary sewer and street improvements on Morning Side drive were approved by council.

Council extended the land being annexed to the city along the east side of Seltzer park by repealing an ordinance passed earlier this month and passing a new one.

Mayor Morris reported that the WPA project for widening Main street, Wentz avenue to the New York Central railroad crossing, would get under way near the east side square Thursday morning.

The project will move west on the south side of the street, Morris said, so that traffic can use the street while it is being improved.

The street will be widened an average of approximately three feet on each side.

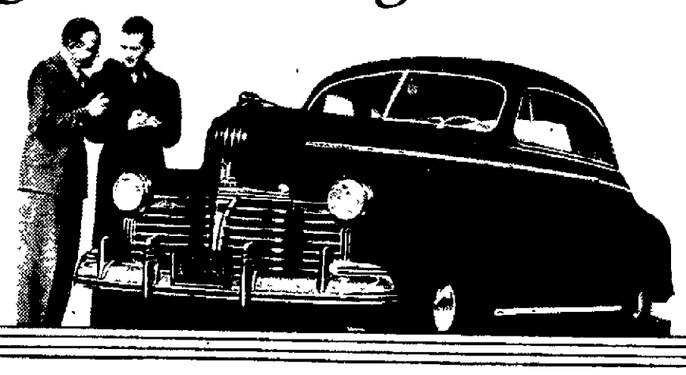
Streamliner "Torpedo" Six Sedan Coupe $923
Delivered at Pontiac, Michigan*

"A Pontiac Owner gave me the greatest selling I've ever had!"



GENERAL MOTORS' MASTERPIECE

"ONE OF THE BEST SALESMEN I've ever met actually wasn't a salesman at all—at least by profession. Yet, this man gave me the greatest, down-to-earth selling I've ever had from anybody.

"He was a Pontiac owner to whom I talked when I was considering the purchase of a new car a few weeks ago.

"This man showed me from actual records that his big, roomy, luxurious Pontiac 'Torpedo' costs no more for gasoline and oil than the small car I was driving. And as for upkeep, he proved to me that Pontiac has every feature that assures maximum dependability and trouble-free performance.

"Then, to top it all off, he let me drive his Pontiac—and what a thrill this was! More power, get-away and smooth action than I had ever dreamed of getting in a low-priced car. And speaking of price—of course you know that the 1941 Pontiacs cost only a few dollars more than the lowest.

"Needless to say, I now own a Pontiac—and I'm mighty proud of it. In fact, I'm urging all my friends to buy Pontiacs!"

Still a Serious Incident

YESTERDAY'S news that the 35 persons believed lost when the Robin Moor was sunk was welcome news indeed to all Americans and especially to relatives in Mansfield and this county of the R. W. McCullough family.

The rescue of those 35 will go far to soothe the tempers of Americans, too, who were irate at the German tactics in sending the vessel to the bottom.

But actually, the seriousness of the situation is little if any lessened.

In the first place no vessel of war or peace had any business attacking the Robin Moor—a peaceful merchantman minding its own business, carrying no war materials and flying the American flag.

In the second place no hostile craft, whether German or Italian or any other, if it had lawful reasons for attacking the Robin Moor, had any right to ignore the rules of international law agreed to by all the powers in 1930. Even in case of justified sinking, the attacking craft was obligated by those rules not to "sink or render incapable of navigation a merchant vessel without having first placed passengers, crew and ship's papers in a place of safety."

It is also specified that "for this purpose the ship's boats are not regarded as a place of safety, unless the safety of the passengers and crew is assured, in the existing sea conditions, by the proximity of land or the presence of another vessel which is in a position to take them aboard."

The Axis powers will have a hard time explaining such a criminal deed. And if this is to be regular procedure from now on, there can be only one outcome.

U. S. Takes Lead In 'Nerve War'

MORE time probably will be needed to gauge the full effect of the action by the United States government yesterday in calling on Germany to close all its consulates in this country, as well as its propaganda agencies.

The step is the second bit of diplomatic pressure put on Germany within less than a week, the first being the freezing of all German credits here.

To be expected, of course, is a German demand on this country to close its consulates in the reich. That is the usual diplomatic procedure, together with the arrangement for safe conduct to friendly territory of the consular representatives.

The reason for the American demand that Nazi consulates here be closed is that Nazi agents have engaged in improper activities, detrimental to the welfare of this country. It is safe to assume that the state department and the president can back up that charge to anyone's satisfaction.

The question arises, then, if these things were known, as to why we waited so long. Certainly, those "improper activities," must have been going on for a long time, if the theory of Nazi thoroughness is to be believed.

At any rate, even though the move may be tardy, we seem to be doing well enough in our current "war of nerves" with the Germans.

We aren't proving ourselves too inadept at it, either. Certainly, we are taking the lead in it, which puts the Germans in a position they don't usually occupy. And probably one they don't relish.

Business Men's Errors

ACCORDING to Dr. Edgar V. Allen of the Mayo Clinic, the doctor's best customer is the business man. And that is only partly because he can pay. He is a profitable patient because in general he is subject to five vices. He drinks too much, smokes too much, eats too much, works too much and is too ambitious.

Bad eating habits, the doctor observes, "wreck courage and undermine the will." And ambition may be just as bad.

"It seems," he says, "that we do not question whether the results of ambition, that is, the possession of money, fame and success, are really worth while. Haven't the objectives of life become a bit distorted?"

Perhaps doctors, business men and philosophers should get together and work these things out more rationally.

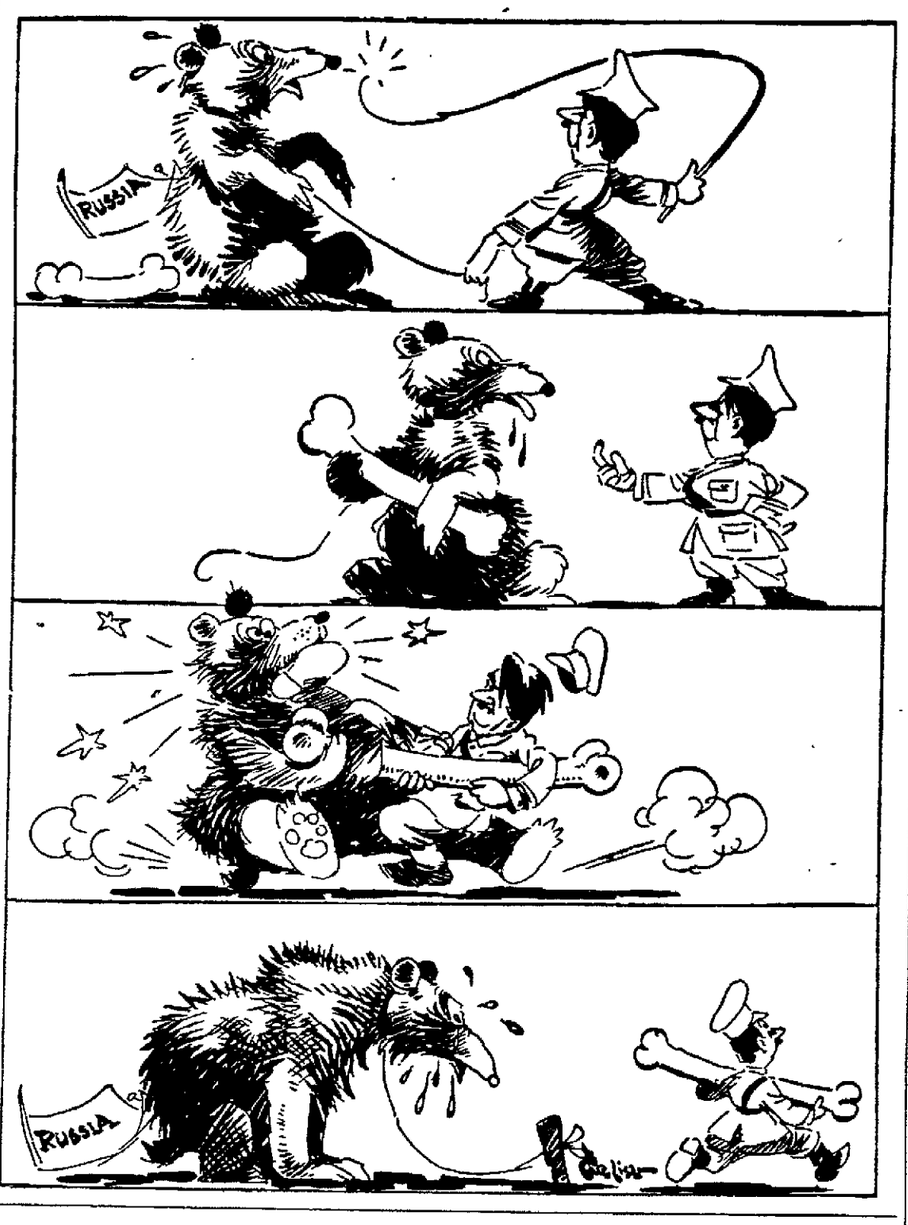
WHEN BEAR BITES MAN, THAT WILL BE NEWS



International Traveling Men

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—When the history of this war is written, there will be a chapter—an important one—on the international traveling men of America.

These men are the eyes and ears of President Roosevelt and the state department and the army, navy and marine corps. They are message bearers to and from the heads of governments on both sides of the eastern hemisphere.

Not since the late Col. E. M. House made his historic trip for President Wilson have the junkets of "personal representatives" of the president or the government attracted such wide attention.

Certainly the first section of this chapter will have to be devoted to Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, for it was his great flying trip of Europe in the spring of 1040 on which the world pinned futile hopes of avoiding the catastrophe of this last year. Welles, the United States' No. 1 diplomat, interviewed Chamberlain, Lord Halifax and the king in England; Hitler in Berlin; Daladier and Lebrun in Paris; and Mussolini in Italy and came back to give the president and Secretary Hull the most complete picture that could then be assembled by one man of the nations poised for battle.

* * *

Willkie Most Unusual.

Most unusual of all the "unofficial observers," of course, was Wendell L. Willkie. Willkie went to bomb-torn England to take a look-see for himself but he went with the president's blessing and his letter of introduction to Winston Churchill. He returned to give this country the unique sight of a defeated candidate of the opposition party reporting in private, his views and observations to the man who had defeated him.

Then went Harry Hopkins, not only perhaps to see and hear and report but to prepare himself, by intimate knowledge, for the herculean task of administering the $7,000,000,000 lend-lease bill. On that trip, too, Hopkins laid the foundation for his conclusion that "Hitler can't win."

Col. William J. (Wild Bill) Donovan combed the Mediterranean, the Balkans, the Near East and Africa for Secretary of Navy Frank Knox besides doing eye and ear work for the secretary in England.

Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the United States, went to England to study what war rations and repeated bombings had done to the health of the nation and came back with the amazing story that ever the worst of the bomb shelters were not as unsanitary as some of our slums and some of the boom towns that mushroomed out of national defense.

* * *

Took Long Way Around.

Most prominent of a battalion of observers in the zones of action for the army, navy and marine corps is Capt. James Roosevelt of the marines, who took the long way round to get to Cairo and the battle of the eastern Mediterranean.

W. Averill Harriman, although he has the title of minister, belongs in this category too, for he is President Roosevelt's personal representative in expediting aid to Britain. Even now, he is on a junket to Egypt which gives him A-1 rating among the president's traveling men. Ambassador John G. Winant's recent "return to report and confer" should put him into the chapter, too.

In the opposite direction went Laughlin Currie to confer, for the president, with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek in Chungking and to bring back his on-the-scene report of the war in the Orient. These are only the most outstanding of the eye and ear men. There are scores of lesser ones sent out by the state and other departments.

If the president, the state department and the government don't know what's going on in the world today on at leas one side of the war picture, it isn't because they haven't sent enough traveling men to bring back first-hand reports.

One-Minute Test.

1. What is a salaam?
2. What woman was given permission by congress to wear male attire?
3. In what states do cranberries grow?

Words of Wisdom.

A hundred men may make an encampment, but it takes a woman to make a home.—Chinese proverb.

Today's Horoscope.

Those who have birthdays today may gain through military matters, but suffer some loss or annoyance through an elderly relative or friend. Unexpected gain or pleasure will come to them. A child who is born on this date will be full of energy and enterprise. He or she will be of keen perceptions and ready wit, somewhat impatient of progress at times, but generally successful.

Hints on Etiquette.

A pert, know-it-all manner coupled with inefficiency, ignorance and a total lack of experience in business is a very bad combination for a person who wishes to make good in a job.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. A common form of salutation among Mohammedans; also a low obeisance.
2. Dr. Mary Walker who was the first woman assistant army surgeon in the U. S. Civil war.
3. In the peat bogs of Massachusetts, parts of New Jersey and New York, Wisconsin, Michigan, Washington and Oregon. The mountain districts of Virginia and West Virginia also yield some cranberries.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, June 17, 1921.

Miss Helen Mamber, Helen Strome, Hazel Algire, Ettabelle McFadden, Dorotha Schaller, Florence Morris and Susanne Heilman were attending the Y. W. C. A. convention at Oxford.

Announcement was made of the coming marriage of Miss Clara Alten of Lancaster and Richard Fensch, to be on June 30.

Howard Schuck left for Akron to accept a position.

John H. Finefrock of the Niman company, was in Columbus attending a state convention of funeral directors.

The public library opened a music department due to the generosity of the Mansfield Musical club.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Wednesday, June 17, 1936.

Katherine Steil, 13, was taken to General hospital for treatment after a fall from her bicycle.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Adams, 136 Bartley avenue.

Cars driven by Henry Nowak and Morton Stern collided at an intersection.

John A. Schnorr returned to duty on the city fire department after an absence of two years due to illness.

James Andrew was hurt when he fell from the running board of a car.

TODAY IN HISTORY

June 17—This is the anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill, more properly Breed's Hill, opposite Boston. The Americans were finally driven from their entrenchments after inflicting a loss of 1,054 men on the British against a loss of about 450.

Brazil Backed U. S. In Stand On Azores' Importance to Us

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The United States is getting much better cooperation from some of our South American neighbors than has leaked out to the public.

Last week, when Portugal protested to the United States against Roosevelt's fireside chat hinting the seizure of the Azores, the Brazilian government immediately got in touch with the U. S. state department. The Portuguese had sent the Brazilians a copy of their protest, and Brazil asked us what reply we were going to make.

Ambassador Caffrey in Rio de Janeiro immediately showed Foreign Minister Aranha a summary of our proposed repiy, and Aranha volunteered to send Portugal exactly the same answer—telling them it was vital to the safety of the Western Hemisphere that the Azores be in friendly hands, and that Brazil could not afford to see the islands taken by the Axis.

This message was sent: which means that Brazil will co-operate with the United States if and when the time comes to occupy the Azores.

Argentina also has been more co-operative than ever despite the die-hard efforts of our Rocky Mountain congressmen to prevent the importation of Argentine canned beef. Argentine sentiment os overwhelmingly anti-Hitler and pro-Roosevelt. The Argentines are much stronger for Roosevelt than for the United States, and have their fingers crossed as to what may happen after Roosevelt leaves office.

Dakar and Robin Moor.

For approximately one month, however, all White House advisers have agreed that the Azores were far less important than Dakar and the coast of West Africa. That is what makes the sinking of the Robin Moor by a Nazi submarine so doubly significant.

Intelligence advices reaching the War and Navy departments had established that Nazi submarines were operating out of Dakar—also some Italian subs, it was believed, though this was not definite. German technicians have been in Dakar for some time preparing air bases, and some Nazi planes already are reported there.

Despite the menace of Dakar, presidential advisers have been worried as to what we should do abont it. To take Dakar from the French and to hold it against all comers would require more men than the 50,000 in the U. S. Marine corps. It would require an expeditionary force from the Regular army.

And while such troops are available, the bottoms to transport them are something else again. Once before, the British urged us not to get mixed up in the South Atlantic because it would divert our Navy from the all-important North Atlantic.

The sinking of the Robin Moor, however, has played directly into the hands of those who have been urging the president to adopt the strongest policy in the South Atlanic and, if necessary, land troops on the bulge of Africa.

So keep your eyes on French West Africa.

* * *

Capital Chaff.

If and when Mrs. Roosevelt consents to the departure of her friend Fanny Perkins as Secretary of Labor, keep an eye on ex-Senator Matt Neely, now governor of West Virginia, as her successor . . . Incidentally, when you figure that it took the President of the United States and federal troops to stop the North American Aviation strike, Fanny's failures don't look quite as bad. . . . In Hitler's interview with Ambassador Cudahy, given May 23 but not published until June 6, der Fuehrer remarked that he had never heard anyone in Germany say the Mississippi river was a German frontier in the same spirit as the Allies referred to the Rhine as their frontier.

On May 29, between these dates, Charles A. Lindbergh told an America First rally at Philadelphia: "If we say that our frontier lies on the Rhine, they can say that theirs lies on the Mississippi." . . .

Three German-Russian counties in South Dakota have been quietly investigated by the justice department with card indexes of just who is who. It was in this area that a Lutheran minister eulogized Hitler from his pulpit.

* * *

Unexpected Chief Justice.

Justice Harlan F. Stone owes his surprise elevation to chief justice to a little group of conservative Senate Democratic leaders.

A week before the appointment, the president was all set to go through with his original plan to name Attorney General Bob Jackson. But the Old Guard swung into action and the president changed his mind. Three arguments brought this about:

(1) That Jackson, while an outstanding attorney, was inexperienced as a jurist. (2) That the elevation of Stone would leave an opening for Jackson on the bench, at the same time insure a liberal as chief justice. (3) That the appointment would be "smart politics," since Stone is a Republican first put on the court by Coolidge, and all of Roosevelt's other selections have been Democrats.

Among themselves the Old Guarders discussed a compromise deal by which Stone, 69 years old, would agree to step out in a year or two to make way for Jackson as chief justice. But this proposition never got beyond their private palavers. When it came to suggesting it to the president they very wisely got cold feet.

Jackson will take over his judicial duties as soon as confirmed. Senator Byrnes will continue in the senate for a while — at Roosevelt's personal request. With Alben Barkley laid up because of illness, Byrnes is acting floor leader and the administration sorely needs his skill.

In fact, the brainy South Carolinian's parliamentary talents were his biggest obstacle to winning the Supreme court post. Some of Roosevelt's lieutenants advised against taking Byrnes out of the Senate and depriving the administration of its sole topnotch floor general.

* * *

Jackson Successor.

Although Francis Biddle, able solicitor general, is considered by insiders the most likely choice for attorney general, there is no certainty about it.

Biddle gave up a lifetime job as a U. S. circuit judge to return to Washington, but so far the president has said nothing to him about succeeding Jackson. However, this is not necessarily significant. FDR gave Stone no hint about making him chief justice, and neither Byrnes nor Jackson knew definitely about their appointments until the day before they were announced.

Chief reason for doubt about Biddle is talk by friends of Justice Frank Murphy that he is restless on the bench and would like to become attorney general again. A hint was dropped by a White House intimate the other day that there might be another Supreme court vacancy by fall.

Whether the inner circler was referring to Murphy or Justice William Douglas was not revealed, but the latter has been proposed as boss of the whole defense organization.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—This bureau looked in on Jack Dempsey, the old ex-pearl diver, and found him hunched over a large order of corn beef and cabbage in his restaurant on Broadway. Manassa Jack was in good humor. It was a good time to catch him, because in a few days now, on Friday, July 4th, to be precise, Jack has a date with an old memory of his—the memory of a brawl in the blistering Toledo sun with a guy named Jess Willard, just 22 years ago.

On that day Dempsey weighed 189 pounds. It was the least he ever weighed for a championship fight. When he knocked out Firpo he weighed in the 190's. When he fought Tunney, he weighed 202.

Today Dempsey looks almost exactly as he did during both the Tunney fights. . . . He weighs about 213. . . . Swart, dark, catquick, he looks like an Indian. He tapers from his shoulders to his heels. He has no waist-line. . . . His eyes are clear and humorous. Not many know it, but Dempsey has a prodigious memory for faces and names. He meets more people than Mayor LaGuardia. A surprising number of these names and faces, he remembers. He is not unaware, of course, that as a restaurant man this is a talent that serves him well.

* * *

Speaking of restaurants, Dempsey explains: "Most fighters never think of opening restaurants until their fighting days are over. With me it was different. I was a restaurant man before I ever saw a prize-fight.

"I was a pearl diver. You know what a pearl diver is? A pearl diver is a dish washer. I was a pearl diver for my old man in his restaurant in Montrose, Colorado—the Rio Grande Eating House. Then I became a yard hand. A yard hand is a potato pealer. After that they promoted me to 2nd cook. It was only after this that I became a fighter."

Jack still is, and always will be, identified actively with contests of physical violence. Only last week he came back from a two-month tour of the country, refereeing fights and wrestling brawls.

"Fights are better than wrestling matches," says Dempsey "All wrestlers are crazy—they're nice guys on the street, but in the ring they think they're actors. . . . They all do. Sometimes, for publicity, they take swings at the referee. . . . Then it becomes necessary to knock them out of the ring. . . . That's happened to me often. . . . The first time was in Texas, back in the twenties. . . . I had been warned about this guy. . . . He thought he was tough. . . Finally he swung at me, and I had to kayo him. . . . But you know, he was really a nice guy. I learned to think a lot of him. He's dead now. . . He was killed in an accident a couple of weeks ago."

* * *

As we talked a young man came over and asked Dempsey for his autograph. Jack looked up. "Brother," he said, "are you from Salt Lake City? ". . . I am," replied the young man, surprised. Whereupon Dempsey urged luncheon upon him, saying to the waiter, "Take care of my friend. . . . I want him to have everything he wants."

Actually, Dempsey had never seen him before. "But I recognized him," cried Dempsey. "He's a Mormon missionary. They don't have a lot of money. I can tell 'em as far as I can see 'em. . . . It is things like this perhaps that help explain why Dempsey is still Dempsey—after all these years.

Daily Bible Thought

He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty. I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge and my fortress; my God; in Him will I trust.—Psalm 91:1, 2.

A Farmer's Diary

The Sower of Seeds

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

AT SUNUP my wife went with me to sow soybeans in the nearly level plot of ground between our peach orchard and our neighbor's woods. The land was plowed two weeks ago and well disked. Along the edge, where the tractor turned, we drove in our car, the bumpers laden with bags of soybeans—enough for three acres.

* * *

We took along a little water and a package of inoculator. Inoculator on legume seed—such as clover, alfalfa, peas and lepsedesa—is the nitrogen fixing bacteria for that particular plant. Each crop produces better if this bacteria is applied well before planting. Once these bacteria are in the soil, soybeans might be planted again next year, without inoculation, and good results obtained. It used to be that inoculator came in bottles, the contents to be added to water and applied. Since no apparent change took place, it was hard to be sure when the inoculation had been completed. Now the bacteria are combined with lampblack, or a substance like soot. All that is needed is to dampen the seed a little and dust it over lightly, then mix. The blackened seeds show clearly that inoculator has touched them.

I tied the ends of a bag by the corners to make a sling, filled it with inoculated beans and started down the row at a measured pace, throwing the beans rhythmically as I went, with my left hand. My companion prepared more seed for my return.

"Behold," I thought, "A sower went forth to sow," and in my imagination I saw him, through the ages, coming down the years with a bag of grain upon his shoulder and in his mind the dream of harvest and the winter store. The same sun shone on him as shines on me; the blackbirds swooped inquisitively along his path, as they do on mine; a mate and growing family lived happily or sparsely, according to the fruits of his labor.

* * *

I came back toward my companion in the car. She was watching. I knew she felt, as I did, the stirring rhythm of the continuous step and the swinging hand with the seeds scattering evenly between the fingers, upon the loose moist soil.

Below us, the green valley had seemed asleep when we first began. Now the neighbors' cattle went peacefully out to pasture; teams moved slowly through the rows of tender corn; awakened flocks of sheep bleated from the open field; a mare whinnered to her newborn foal.

The wind blew from the east; leaves of oak and aspen bore high the broad gray underside to the rising sun; it felt like rain.

The task was finished. We went home before the youngsters awoke and missed us. And we were glad—not only that the field was planted, but that we had shared a bit of the poetry of living.

Let's Look Around

No Mormon Beggars or Tramps

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah—As the western migration of persecuted Mormons led through northern Ohio, with one of their early temples still standing at Kirtland, it is interesting to note what different history might have been written if present-day religious tolerance had existed a century ago.

Driven from Ohio into Illinois, where Joseph Smith, their first leader, was murdered in 1844, the Mormon group moved westward under leadership of Brigham Young, until they finally found haven here.

Early antagonism to Mormonism had its semblance of justification—or at least its excuse—in a former Mormon custom of sanctioning plural marriages, which, however, had been banned by the church for more than forty years and at no time had been practiced by more than a small percentage of the membership, according to reliable authority. Polygamy is now punished by excommunication from the church.

* * *

BASED on belief in a divine revelation of the Book of Mormon to Joseph Smith, the principles of industry, thrift, kindness, and abstention from habits deemed detrimental to physical, mental or spiritual well being, were strongly stressed by Brigham Young and have continued as rules of conduct to the present day. Use of intoxicants, tobacco—and even coffee or tea—is banned under strict interpretation of Mormon rules and only those who conform to these restrictions are likely to advance to high places in the church councils.

* * *

EARLY training of children in Mormon families is strongly emphasized. At the age of 8 a Mormon child is baptized; at 12 he is ordained a deacon; at 14 he becomes a teacher and at 16 a priest—later an elder, then a "Seventy," and afterward a high priest—each with increasing duties and responsibilities.

Many of the young men and women give two years to missionary work, sometimes as a break-in on their college course, during which time they are required to meet their own expenses wherever they may be assigned for duty.

At the head of the church is Heber J. Grant as president, with two counsellors, whom he chooses. Next in authority are the Twelve Apostles, who gain that position through recognition of capability and activity in church work. Next in honor and responsibility are "The Seventy."

* * *

AN IDEA of how it comes about that there are no Mormon beggars or tramps can be gained only by closer observation than is ordinarily given by a visitor to Salt Lake City, greatly aided by the friendly interest of Samuel O. Bennion, publisher of the Deseret News, and guidance of Amos Jenkins, member of the staff of that newspaper.

The Mormon organization, which constitutes around 45 per cent of the Salt Lake City population and approximately 80 per cent of Utah's rural population has a well systematized, co-operative, self contained plan of handling its relief problems, without federal, state or municipal aid.

A visit to the Salt Lake Regional Bishops' Storehouse, and to the institution known as "Deseret Industries," with explanation of methods given by Bishop June B. Sharp, supervisor at the storehouse, is a revelation in efficient handling of co-operative relief, with food supplies of all kinds being made ready for call to meet needs in the various regions and "stakes" which are units of the church organization.

A grain elevator holding 318,000 bushels of wheat is filled to capacity, awaiting a possible famine period, and an immense cellar holds 40 carloads of potatoes, carrots and turnips.

* * *

NO MORMON goes hungry or insufficiently clothed, and all able-bodied Mormons work. The bee hive, suggesting industry, is their symbol—and consideration, one for another, is a tenet of their faith. The word "deseret" is from the Book of Mormon and signifies industry. Their way of life brings them happiness and contentment—which is much to be desired. There is seldom a divorce among Mormons—their belief is that marriage extends through eternity.

LABOR SUPPLY CURBS WORK ON SEWER PROJECT

South Boulevards Engineer Says Work To Be Centered on Treatment Plant.

An insufficient labor supply today stalemated work on part of the $112,000 South Boulevards sewage system project, Kenneth P. Shaffer, consulting engineer said today.

All work on the collecting lines of the system has been suspended until the treatment plant is constructed, Shaffer said. The plant, approximately 80 per cent complete, comprises about 35 per cent of the finished project, Shaffer stated.

Reason for the shutdown on the collecting unit is that the available WPA labor supply is insufficient to continue construction of both the treatment and collection units of the project.

More than 100 men were at work on the system in February. Fifty-five men are available for work now, Shaffer said.

He estimated that 5,000 feet of the estimated 30,000 feet required to complete the collecting sewer-system had been laid. This represents one sixth of the pipe to be installed for the system.

Work on the project began Jan. 20. Plans call for it to be completed by September, contingent upon the available labor supply, Shaffer said.

The treatment plant will furnish both primary and secondary treatment for sewage. Treated sewage will leave the filtering beds at the plant in a pure state, Shaffer said.

Filtered liquids will be disposed of in the small stream which has been diverted from its normal channel to ficilitate the flow of material from the plant.

Federal funds provide about three quarters of the money necessary to financ the $112,000 project. South Boulevards voted a bond issue last year to obtain $27,500 to pay its share of the cost.

LAY PLANS FOR EXTRA CLASSES

Board Sets Up First Junior High Training For Pupils With Faulty Hearing.

Mansfield's first Junior high school classes for pupils with defective hearing were established last night by the board of education in cooperation with the state department of education.

Supt. W. L. Miller said approximately 12 pupils in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades will be enrolled in the classes with a specially-trained teacher. They will have access to shops and other equipment, and activities in the regular Junior high set-up, he added.

The classes will be conducted at Johnny Appleseed Junior high school where a new group Audiphone with 12 headphones will be installed at a cost of $382.50. The Mansfield schools will be reimbursed by the state for money spent on the equipment for the deaf school pupils.

Mansfield schools have had special classes for several years in the elementary grades for training pupils with defective hearing, but none in the junior high and Senior high schools.

Teachers Assert Love at First Sight a Myth

DENTON, Tex.—(INS)—Love at first sight, is just about a myth, a panel of six faculty members of North Texas State Teachers College has decided.

The six—four of whom are successfully married, and the unmarried director of the college nursery school and a home economics instructor—led a discussion of "love, courtship and marriage" at a meeting of the Psychology club.

The panel agreed that young people should choose their mates with their intelligence and not with the emotions, and added that it is a juvenile mistake when one thinks there can be only one love affair in his life.

They also decided that girls believe it is more feminine to be pursued than to run after the male, but that it is possible for a girl to let herself be pursued beyond the male's willing reach.

SERIES TIED

LEBANON, Ind.—(U.P.)—Three years ago Ruth Evans and Robert Hunter of Lebanon began a series of cribbage games. When they reached the 5,000th game they decided to check up and find out who won, and discovered that:

It had taken 833½ hours, or 104 eight-hour days; neither of them had been dealt a perfect hand, and —Miss Evans had won 2,500 games and Hunter had won 2,500 games.

UNIQUE VOTING RECORD

RUTLAND, Mass.—(INS)—This colonial county has made history —no blanks were recorded in the recent election in the vote for register of deeds. County commissioners, checking the ballot, said it was the first time in the history of Rutland that no blanks were cast for a county office.

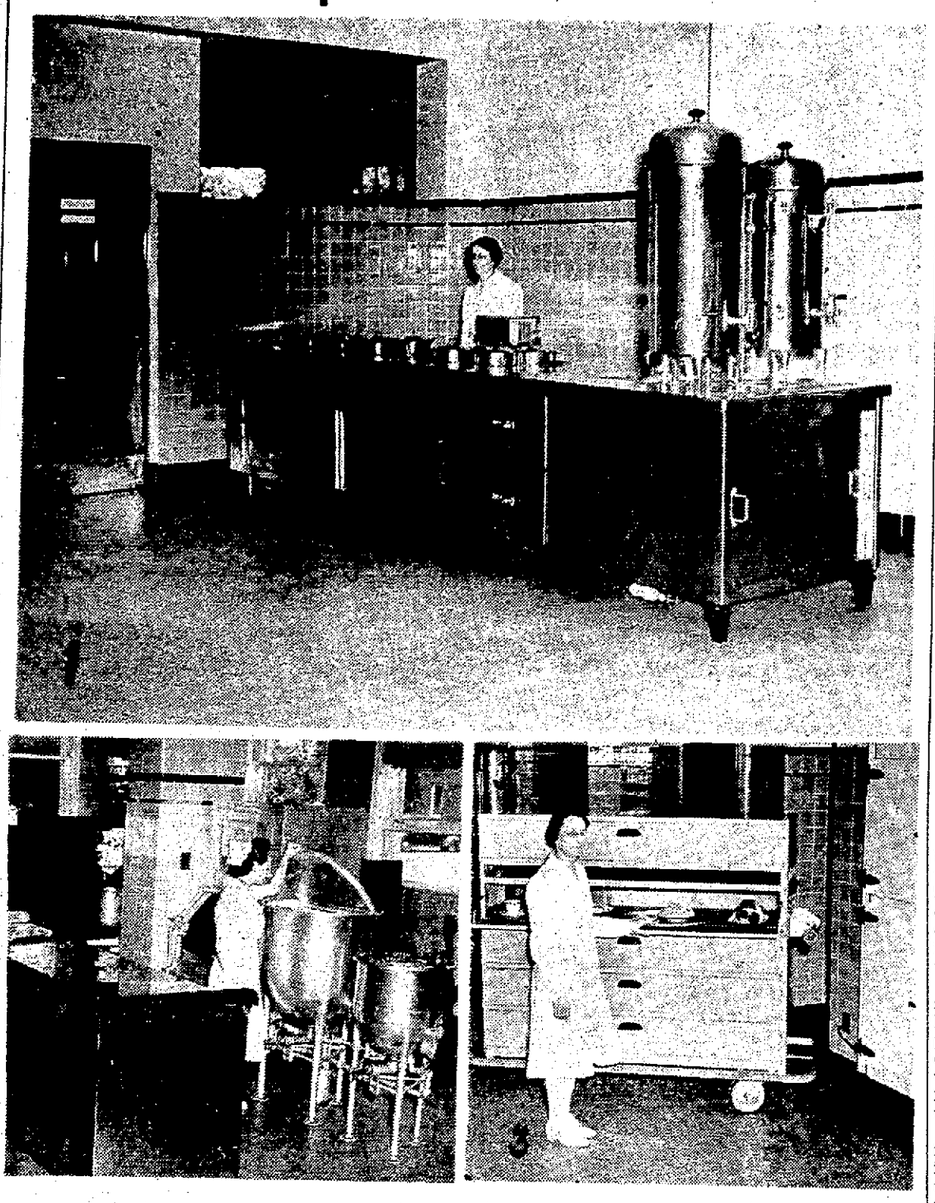
Where Hospital Foods Are Cooked



Mansfield General hospital has a new kitchen with orchid tile walls and $8,000 worth of brand new equipment. The kitchen, put into use last week, is in the basement of the new $80,000 south wing. 1.—Miss Nellie Hook, 394 Glessner avenue, stands behind the new stainless steel steam serving table. 2.—Harriet Heffelfinger looks into one of the built-in cooking pots in the main kitchen where meats and soups are prepared. 3.—Miss Hook loads one of the new tray trucks which, electrically heated, carry food to patients in the farthest room piping hot.

New Kitchen Offers Latest Equipment In Tile Setting

Vitamins with an orchid tile background, that's what patients and attaches at Mansfield General hospital are getting with the opening of the new kitchen in the $80,000 south wing.

Completely modern, with $8,000 of new equipment set within spotless tile walls, the kitchen is designed to assure efficient preparation of the varied diets required by convalescing persons.

In charge of food preparation is Miss Nellie Hook, hospital dietician, who is assisted by student nurses. Four different diets are prepared daily in addition to special regimen for from six to 20 particular cases.

The student nurses plan the menus in a special division complete with refrigerator and stove.

After the food is prepared, identification tags are attached so that meals go to the patient for whom they were planned.

The food is wheeled from the kitchen through hospital corridors to the rooms in electrically heated trucks with five broad closed compartments.

Nurses eat in small dining rooms adjacent to the kitchen in the basement of the new wing.

Dishes are washed and dried mechanically.

And that's not all the mechanical work done. Electric grinders and mixers do most of the heavy work in all the kitchens, preparing the food for the big ranges and stationary heating pots.

Food is stored in three large built-in refrigerators until it is used and special foods are kept in a $1500 stainless steel cooler.

Even the color of those orchid tile walls has it's utilitarian point. It was selected by Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, hospital superintendent, who followed the trend of many modern hospitals in getting away from strictly white decoration and fixtures.

The remainder of the new wing, containing 15 beds, was opened during the first week of February.

Study Sending of Police, Firemen to Welfare Classes

The possibility that the City of Mansfield might send a fireman and policeman to the chemical warfare school of the Edgewood, Md., arsenal is being studied by the finance committee of city council.

Fred Miller, chairman of the committee, announced today that authorities of the Ohio state defense council and Fort Hayes had invited the city to send representatives to the school for training to combat chemicals as used in war.

Miller said that the city employes would be quartered at the barracks at the Edgewood arsenal and that charges for both attending a two weeks' session would approximate $60.

The chairman said that he was communicating with City Solicitor M. D. Ward, jr., to learn whether council could legally appropriate funds for the training and other details connected with the offer.

X-rays were discovered in 1895 by Prof. Wilhelm K. Rontgen of the University of Wurzburg.

NO DANGER OF ELECTRIC POWER SHORTAGE HERE

That's What Mansfielders Are Told To Dispel Belief Supply Might Be Curtailed.

Mansfielders and other residents of northern Ohio were given the assurance today that there is no danger of a shortage of electrical power because of a diversion to defense needs.

The assurance was given by T. O. Kennedy, president of the Ohio Public Service company, who wrote Joy A. Herbert, vice president and district manager here, that there is no potential shortage of power for residential or industrial purposes in the territory served by the company.

Herbert said that the statement had been made to dispel belief that the use of electric power would be curtailed here as it has been in the Tennessee Valley to produce supplies for growing aircraft and lend-lease programs.

"Residential users of our electric power have no need at all for curtailing use of their household electrical appliances," said Herbert. "There is plenty of electric power capacity available, but it is not being used to the extent that it should be for defense purposes."

Kennedy, in his statment to Herbert and other managers, said that the company could have supplied 50 per cent more kilowatt hours during May without additional equipment or operating personnel in the company's generating stations.

"In May," said Kennedy, "we supplied a demand load of 161,000 kilowatts to our users. This capacity was used less than five hundred hours during the month, whereas it was available for use 24 hours a day for 31 days, or a total of 744 hours."

Kennedy said that unless defense industries in our territory increases much more rapidly than they have, that the company would have ample capacity to care for all defense industries, as well as residential demands, for a long time to come.

Curtailing use of residential electric service, would, according to Kennedy, have practically no effect on the total demand for power. He stated that a very small percentage of the total power output is consumed by residences.

RECEIVE FUNDS

County Cities, Villages and Townships Get Tax Share.

Cities, villages, and townships in Richland county added $27,347 to their operating funds today after County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe distributed that amount in sales tax receipts for the second quarter of the year.

Mansfield received $10,692, largest amount of any of the sub-divisions. Shelby's share totaled $1,367, and Madison township got $546. Other townships and villages received smaller amounts.

The county receives approximately $100,000 a year in sales tax money in monthly allocations from the state. The county auditor distributes the funds quarterly.

The rest of the sales tax money goes into the state general fund to help finance schools and other departments.

Mansfielder Seeks Damages For Crash Injuries.

A $10,000 damage suit for personal injuries received in a traffic accident Nov. 1, 1940, in Mansfield had been filed in Richland county common pleas court today by William Gershon, Mansfield.

The action is against Mack Reed, Hamilton, O., driver of a car which allegedly crashed into one driven by Gershon on North Main street.

Gershon states in his petition that he suffered a severe shoulder injury and several fractured ribs, forcing him to remain in General hospital for 11 days. His car was demolished in the crash, he said. Attys. G. W. Marriott and James L. Eberly represent Gershon.

Announce Winners In Model Plane Contest at Ohio

Junior Kilgore, 139 Poplar street, won the airplane trophy awarded by Sam Fox, jeweler, for first place in the model airplane contest jointly sponsored by The News-Journal and Ohio theater in connection with the showing of the picture, "I Wanted Wings."

Entries in the contest were judged at the theater last night by Ralph B. Chapman, E. C. Peat and Merritt Caton. The judges based their decision on four points, neatness of workmanship, amount of detail, originality in reproduction of parts, and color and finish.

Henry Kampf, 159 Bartley avenue, won second place in the contest, and Robert Schoenman, 315 West Fifth street, third place. They received airplane kits donated by E. C. Peat Hardware company and Mansfield Athletic Supply company.

Entrants in the contest also received free admittance to "I Wanted Wings," which is being held over through Friday.

The Secret of the Marshbanks + + +

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1941)

CHAPTER XV

"I'd be so glad, Mrs. Marshbanks!" Cherry, always responsive to this woman's strange charm and with her fascination increased by Kelly's feeling, was thrilled to the marrow of her bones at the little overture of friendship.

"To begin with," Fran said with a direct smile from under her silky black bangs, and ultramodern hat, "don't call me 'Mrs. Marshbanks! It sounds as if I were an elderly aunt."

"Fran, then. What can I do?"

"I'm trying to think it out, exactly," Fran answered. "I think I mean that I'd like you to be a friend of Kelly's, Cherry, and help him see my position. If I were free," Fran went on thoughtfully, "I'd marry him. But I'm not free. You see, Cherry, two years ago—more than two years ago, when we'd been married—oh, perhaps eighteen months or so—I told Jud that I wanted to live my own life. I didn't want to be his wife any more, L—suddenly I went restless and unhappy, and it was that. I didn't want to be his wife!"

"I—didn't suspect anything, of course!" Cherry stammered.

"Well, don't look so scared!" Fran said, with her careless half-laugh that had no mirth in it. "That's the situation far oftener than you think. And Jud understands—there's no one in the world so generous to anything small or mean in somebody else as Jud is!"

"Oh, I believe that!" Cherry said fervently.

"And for that reason," Fran pursued, "perhaps I'm a little less scrupulous than I might be about—I won't say flirting, I hate the word! But about friendships with men, liking men. I can't help it. I'vemade . . ." And to Cherry's astonishment the dark eyes so near her own were suddenly misting. I've made . . ." And to Cherry's so far," Fran said, "that I'm going to play the game now."

"So if you can," Fran concluded, as Cherry continued to watch her in silent fascination, "put that to Kelly. He likes you. He thinks you're interesting. And you see, nowadays I don't see him at all. I promised Jud I'd not see him unless it was unavoidable, and it is avoidable. That day you were with us—the day at Sausalito, the day it rained, was the—no, that wasn't the last time," Fran interrupted herself to say honestly, "but at least I don't know when I'll see him again, and if you could rather put it to him that it's from a—well, a sense of honor, it would help. You don't think I have a sense of honor, do you?" she asked, with a careless, oblique smile in Cherry's direction.

"I know you have!" Cherry was ashamed of her own suspicions of Fran.

Fran said nothing more, and Cherry was silent too, looking out of the car widows at countryside that was growing richer and more beautiful with every mile.

"This is your place; it looks comfortable enough," Fran said as the car stopped. 'Ask Rousseau to go to the gas station in Atherton, will you, and we'll find out there where the Rasmussen place is. And we'll be back for you at five."

Cherry, delightfully thrilled, descended at a green hedge not too well trimmed, a stretch of lawn in need of cutting and a wide, square wooden house generously balconied with most of its many windows opened to the sweet spring air. Mrs. Pringle, large and untidy, took her up to her room, which was large too, and if not untidy, somewhat bare in effect after the luxurious perfection of the Marshbanks home. But Cherry loved it at sight. It was her own, and when she took possession of it a day or two later she would be, for the first time in her life, free and independent, spending her leisure and her allowance as she liked.

* * *

When she had expressed herself as immensely pleased with it, they went downstairs and looked into a dining room with one large table and four small ones in it, already set for dinner. At this point a tall boy dashed in, shouted that he had to find a blue paper, shouted further that he had "a four o'clock," and was forcefully arrested by his mother's big hand to be introduced to Miss Rawlings, who on Saturday was coming down to stay.

"Hello, Miss Rawlings," said George Pringle, all but breaking the bones of Cherry's hand "I'm late and it's mid-terms; I'll be flunked out next week and then we'll talk!"

He thundered upstairs, thundered down again, was gone and a pretty girl of perhaps twenty sauntered in from the kitchen eating a slice of bread with peanut butter lavishly plastered over it, and raised her eyebrows.

"Mother, I didn't know Miss Rawlings was here! How do you do? Are you hungry? What could I offer you?"

"How were you ex-es?" asked the mother.

"Repulsive," said Rebecca Pringle calmly. Cherry laughed and Rebecca smiled at Cherry and they immediately liked each other. "It was all stuff he'd never dreamed of mentioning to us before," said Rebecca. "But I think I hit some of it. You've been up to school?" she asked the visitor. "You haven't? Then I'll tell you what we'll do; we'll take a run up there now, and I'll show you 'round—"

"Oh, but you're tired! I wouldn't think—"

"I'd love it," Rebecca, whose manner was goddeslike in its serenities, said pleasantly. She and Cherry went out to a batered open two-seater at the gate and were immediately engulfed in a town full of small cars from which students dangled hilariously.

The college buildings, were set in long cloisters and flower-edged lawns. When they stopped at the co-operative store, boys swarmed about the car and Rebecca introduced them, and Cherry could talk of classes she wanted to visit and of coaching in a group that was absorbed in the same interests. They were in Econ, too; they were in theatricals; they were reading a play next Thursday night, and she must come.

Altogether when they went back to the Pringle house and sat on the steps real small-town fashion, greeting neighbors who were pruning hawthorne trees or cutting grass, and greeted by an occasional car flashing by, Cherry was half intoxicated with happiness and anticipation, and felt that of all the changing phases, of her life this one promised her the most contentment.

She had telephoned Kelly only once in her life; she thought she might telephone him legitimately tonight, making an appointment to tell him of her good fortune, and perhaps hint something of what Fran had said. Also, she might not see him again, for Palo Alto was an even hour's drive from the city, and Topcote was another half-hour's trip across the bay. But although she put in the call immediately upon reaching home and waited for it until ten o'clock, the number was reported as not answering, and somewhat chilled, she abandoned the idea.

* * *

However, two weeks later when Easter vacations were over and she was conscientiously visiting classes, and studying dutifully with a coach who had been recommended, she had a telegram from him that sent her spirits to the skies.

"Coming home from Carmel Sunday morning. Can I pick you up for picnic at Topcote at about 10? Love, Kelly," read the message. Cherry could not answer it but she was ready and waiting when he stopped the battered old car at the gate and when she settled herself beside him she would not have changed places with any woman in the world

"Goody!" she said.

"Why 'goody?' "

"Because you're alone."

"Who'd you think I was bringing?"

"No one special. But it's more fun to be alone."

"I've been a little too much alone," he said. "I came down for the Rasmussen wedding, and then went on to Carmel and painted cypresses and rocks."

"When . . ." She felt a prick of sick premonition. "When was the Rasmussen wedding?" she said.

"Two weeks ago—two weeks ago Wednesday. Alice Rasmussen is the closest friend I have, you know. She's a peach. It was a small home affair; no fuss. Her brother must be 50 and the bride looked about that, and Stan wanted me for his best man. So I stayed there a couple of days—I was bluer than indigo anyway—and then went on down to Carmel."

"Then you saw Fran," Cherry stated rather than asked, with the bright day going dark about her.

"Fran?" His amazed eyes gave her a side glance. "How d'you mean?"

"She brought me down to the Pringles' to make arrangements and things. That was on Thursday, two weeks ago."

"I didn't know Fran was there!" He was honestly astonished. "Did she come to see Alice Rasmussen?"

"Well, maybe she didn't." Again Cherry must stand corrected about Fran. Instantly the solution occurred to her. Fran had learned in some way that Kelly was there, that by an extraordinary accident he was the Rasmussens' guest. And she had determined to avoid him.

Perhaps she had made her other call first and someone there had happened to mention him. Whatever she had done, Cherry knew she could believe Kelly now, for his consternation at the thought of her having been so near and his having missed her was unmistakably genuine.

This might be her chance to speak to him of Fran.

"Maybe she didn't want to see you, Kelly. Maybe she thought it would be no use," she offered timidly.

"I haven't any illusions as to its being any use, if by 'it' you mean my feeling for her," he answered decisively, almost savagely, and there was a silence. After a moment or two he said that he was sorry to be so rude, and they talked by rather awkward degrees of other things until they were at ease again.

* * *

But the morning's gala mood was hard to recapture, and Cherry felt something lacking in the beginning of the day. The bridge and the Sausalito hills were wreathed and buried in fog; the picnic turned itself into a house party. Three of four friends had been asked to lunch with Kelly, all bringing picnic contributions far more suited to the woods or the beach than to the living room.

But they roasted their frankfurters at the open fire, toasted their buttered buns with much dripping and burning, and brewed coffee, and after the meal, while the women cleared the room and got the kitchen in order, the men went out for a walk. Cherry liked gentle little Mrs. Wilcox and the talented portrait painter Helena Vare, but she felt cheated of Kelly's company and brushed the hearth and dried the dishes in a sober mood of disappointment.

Immediately afterward, however, matters took a turn for the better. The men came back reporting the soft spring afternoon so beautiful for walking that the entire party must come along, and presently they were briskly mounting a hill trail, crossing up-slanted ranges where cattle veered away from them in the fog.

Cherry's cheeks glowed; more than once the others smiled to hear her ringing laughter.

"Oh, Kelly," she said ingenuously when they were back beside the fire again, "it's such fun here! Why can't we all stay here always!"

"All right by me," Kelly said, busy with drinks as Cherry quite naturally took charge of the tea tray, going to the kitchen for hot water, stopping beside the embers to make toast.

"It seems so horrible to go out again into the fog!"

"We'll give you girls the bedroom," Kelly arranged it, "and we can go over to the studio and bunk there."

"Oh, no!" Cherry turned a fire-flushed face toward the room. "I was only fooling. I have to be at Judge Marshbanks' for dinner."

"We have to go. Well take you over," said little Mrs. Wilcox.

"No. I'm responsible," Kelly told them. "I brought her here and I'll see that she gets back safely."

All the way, driving carefully in the fog, he talked of Fran.

GRAND JURORS TO PROBE 15 CRIMINAL CASES

Charges of Car Theft, Grand Larceny, Burglary Head Docket For Session.

When the April term Richland county grand jury convenes for its first session at 8:30 a. m. Wednesday, it will have at least 15 cases to consider.

Most of them involve charges of auto theft, breaking and entering, and grand larceny. The jurors will investigate the cases of Ernest Wright, Arthur Dickson, and Oscole Shaw, colored, former enrollees at the Mansfield CCC camp southeast of the city.

The youths, who are now out on bond, are accused at attempting to break into a colored club on North Diamond street. They were released to permit them to seek enlistment in the army in the event the jury refuses to indict them, county authorities said.

Members of the jury are:

J. S. Shatzer, Cass township; L. E. Schreck, Sharon township; Nile Kuhn, Franklin township; G. L. Reichart, Shelby; Mrs. Alice McGinley, 394 Glessner avenue; Howard A. Fleet Addition

Uncle Sam adds two new destroyers to his fleet with the launching of the U. S. S. Fitch, above, and the U. S. S. Forrest, within a few minutes of each other at the Boston navy yard. The Fitch was namd after Commander Leroy Fitch.

ENDS MOVING JOB

PORTLAND, Ore.—(INS)—L. W. Raynor of Grants Pass started to move his house to a new location recently, but never finished the job. Hoisted on rollers and all ready to be moved, the house caught fire and burned to the ground.

Tells Real Estate Men to Streamline Selling Methods

Joseph Laronge, Cleveland, chairman of the brokers' division of the National association of real estate boards, told Mansfield real estate men at their regular meeting yesterday at the Evergreen cafeteria, that they must "streamline" their selling methods to meet modern conditions.

Charles Callihan, president of the local board, presided.

"It is the duty of realtors to clear slums, construct homes, build housing developments, locate merchants and assist industry," Laronge asserted.

He claimed they must be experts continually learning new developments in their business.

When MANSFIELD'S New Low Electric Rates GO INTO EFFECT

YOU CAN ENJOY LIFE MORE at NO Additional Cost!

★ JUST THINK, if your present electric service bill is from $1.85 to $2.60 a month* you can enjoy the time-saving, work-saving convenience of ALL 4 OF THESE electrical appliances at NO EXTRA COST!

It seems almost unbelievable that the reduction in Mansfield electric rates, which will take place soon, will make it possible for the majority of our residential electric service customers to use the four appliances pictured at the right without paying any more for electric service than they are now paying . . . but it is true. Or if you happen to have these appliances, it is also true that you will be able to cook electrically with an electric roasterette, or enjoy an additional sight-saving I. E. S. lamp, or operate a radio without increasing your electric bill above its present amount. That is why we know you will agree that the drastic rate reduction which will go into effect soon means a real opportunity for you. It means that you will be able to let electrical servants do more of your household tasks for you. That, in turn, means more time for visiting with your family and friends, more time for play, more time for reading and generally enjoying life. Take advantage of this opportunity. Start now to plan which additional electrical servants you will put to work without increasing your electric service bill.

*Many Mansfield electric service customers pay from $1.85 to $2.60 a month for service. The number of additional kilowatt hours you will be able to use, without increasing your electric service bill above its present amount will depend, of course, on your present usage.

LAST MEETING.

Members of the Mansfield Senior high school band Mothers' club held their last meeting of the year Sunday at South park. A covered-dish dinner was served the forty-eight guests in attendance at 6 p. m. Preceding the dinner the afternoon was spent socially. Meetings of the organization will be resumed in the fall.

Attend Annual Convention at Chicago Hotel

Mrs. John Douglas and Miss Helen Widders will go to Chicago today to attend the thirty-sixth annual convention of Delta Theta Tau sorority as the official delegates of the local chapters, Zeta Rho and Delta Theta. The sessions, which are to be held at the Edgewater Beach hotel will begin Wednesday, June 18. A formal dance on Saturday night will close the four days of activities which will include business sessions each day, along with a ranch party, a formal banquet, a luncheon at a downtown hotel, and a sight seeing tour of the city.

Approximately five hundred members are expected to attend the convention. Representatives will be present from the 145 active chapters and the 43 alumnae chapters which are scattered throughout the country. Delta Theta Tau with a combined membership totaling six thousand is the largest existing philanthropic and social Greek letter organization.

A highlight of the convention will be the announcement of the award which is presented annually to the chapter with the highest rating in philanthropic expenditures. In addition to the various local social service and civic projects each chapter contributes to the support of the Delta Theta Tau Community school, which is the national project of the organization located near Brinkley, Ky. Other members of the local chapters who are planning to attend the convention are: Miss Helen Lorow, Miss Esther Dunham, Miss Maxine Jones, Miss Doris Mann, Miss Thelma Reed and Mrs. Kenneth Woodman.

Nursing Unit Makes Plans for Reception

New members of the Red Cross Nursing unit will be honored at a reception, Monday night, July 14, at the home of Miss Lucille Bushey, 895 Gamble street, Shelby.

Plans for the event were made last night by the unit at the home of Mrs. Harold Adams, 38 Marion avenue. Other matters pertinent to the organization were also discussed under the leadership of Mrs. Harry Buchan, president.

His students will be assisted throughout the program by voice students of his wife, Judson Dolle, voilinist, will also furnish accompaniment.

Students taking part in the program are John Fernyak, Ralph Whipp, David Hurley, Thomas Haverfield, Jack Hall, Mary Jean Bell, Patsy Frank, Robert Hutzlemann, John Handley, Norma Jean Hurst, Jack Mitchell, Carol Ann Spencer, Todd Strohmenger, and Hope Bromfield. Families of the pupils are invited to attend this concert.

Sorority Members Plan for Outing

Members of Omega Tau Gamma sorority met recently in their club rooms for their regular business meeting and to make plans for a family outing to be held July 13. Hostesses were Mrs. Norval Bower and Miss Marjorie Crider. Appointed to handle arrangements for the outing were Mrs. Bower, Mrs. Harvey Kibler and Mrs. Robert P. Darling.

Miss Virginia Griffin and Miss Dorothy Hively read the pledge and were presented with the club's constitution in honor of their acceptance as new members. At this time Mrs. Kibler presented Miss Crider, president, with the club's gold gavel.

Bridge and pinochle were the diversions of the evening with prizes going to Mrs. Karl Seymour, Mrs. William Maglott, Miss Griffin and Miss Hively. At the close of the evening a luncheon was served at a long table decorated with flowers and tapers. The next meeting will be held July 11 with Miss Martha Hamilton and Mrs. Robert P. Darling as hostesses.

Gardenia Club Holds Meeting

Mrs. Grace Schellenberger, 151 West Third street, entertained members of the Gardenia club at her home Monday evening. Eight members and two guests, Mrs. Bessie De Yarmon and Mrs. William West were in attendance. Mrs. Howard Schuck, president, conducted a short business session.

During the business meeting plans were made to hold a chicken dinner June 30 at 6:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Schuck, 165 East Fourth street. Bunco was played at two tables and prizes won by Mrs. Nettie Young and Mrs. Catherine Yost. After the social time a two course luncheon was served at small tables decorated with spring flowers. The tables were centered with cakes in honor of the birthdays of Mrs. Jane Beelman and Mrs. Schellenberger.

VIOLINISTS PRESENT CONCERT WEDNESDAY

Students of Various Mansfield Teachers Will Serve As Accompanists to Mrs. Daisie Gibson's Violin Students at Summer Concert.

ONE of the most outstanding recitals of the summer season will be given Wednesday evening when thirty-five boy violinists, pupils of Mrs. Daisie M. Gibson, present their annual summer concert in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. The program will include classical and popular numbers and will be played in solo, duet, quartet and sextet groups.

Two quartete numbers will be the "Hopak" by Moussorgasky and "Gavotte Moderne" by Severn. Bill Klinger, accompanied by his cousin, Albert Smith, jr., a piano pupil of Bess Todd, Crestline, will play Walther's prize song from Wagner's "Die Meistersinger." Young Klinger was recently a Junior State Federation winner.

One of the evening's features will be the offering of the ever popular "From the Cane Break" by Gardner, played by George Porterfield. He will be accompanied by Richard Sparks, well known Mansfield pianist. The group named "The Bo. Violinists" a state Junior Federated Music club with a membership of sixteen will play an arrangement of "Poupee Valsaute" (Dancing Dolly's) and the Andante Movement of the First Symphony by Beethoven. Walter Simon, an advanced pupil of Mrs. Marie Porterfield, will be the accompanist.

Other accompanists for the evening are, William Houston, Oberlin Music student, Jack Hall, pupil of Lawrence Frank, Richard Orr, pupil of Elsie Ireland, who will appear with his brother, Donald Orr, Douglas Black, pupil of Mrs. H. H. Clingan and Jim Draffan of the Porterfield Studio. Donald Hart, a pupil of Miss Ina Balliett will accompany his brother, Robert Hart, and George Loesch, an advanced pupil of Miss Thelma Reed, will play for the duets.

David Weimer, one of Mansfield's most popular young pianists and a student of Mrs. Margaret Hall will play for the quartet numbers. The program will begin at 8 p. m. and will be open to friends and relatives of the participants.

Pattern 9745 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards 35 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Send your order to The Mansfield News-Journal, Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

You can clean white Panama hats with white shoe cleaner. Apply as usual on a clean brush or soft cloth, dry, and then carefully brush off any surplus powder.

Remember iced coffee calls for coffee of double strength. Make up the coffee and pour into tall glasses filled with chopped ice. Iced coffee made like this retains its delicious flavor.

To smooth frosting over a cake, use a spatula or broad-bladed knife and dip it frequently in warm water.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I SPRANG to my feet before Philip Veritzen had finished speaking, and an instant later Olga also rose.

"We will go to the other room at once," I said, and went toward the door, Olga closely following me. As I put my hand upon the knob Philip uttered a low-voiced caution.

"Remember! no sound until you are safely inside the room," he said. "I will come to the outer door of your suite in a very few minutes. Until then, I should advise lively chatter, which, indeed, must be carried on afterward until the arrival of the guards and the setting of the trap."

I forbore to remind him that he already had given us this piece of advice. Instead I said docilely, "We shall remember everything." And then with Olga I went silently through the camouflaged door leading to the balcony suite.

We halted a second in the bedroom of the suite, and then went on into the living room, beginning the high-pitched, desultory chatter which Philip Veritezn had advised.

Deceiving the Eavesdropper.

"I feel ten years younger," Olga said extravagantly. "Your cosmetics are wonderful my dear."

"I like them," I returned, "and I am so glad you approve of them. 'Praise from Sir Hubert,' you know."

I wanted time to look over the rooms, appraise the possible hiding places and plan the disposal of my father's guards from the Greenwich Village hideaway, even now upon the way to aid me.

It would have been an arduous task to talk and plan at the same time, had it not been for Olga, who caught my cue immediately and so elaborated her answers to my brief questions, that she was able to take most of the conversation upon herself, and leave me comparatively free for my planning.

Madge Plans the Ambush.

The problem would be a simple one, I decided, after I had looked the room over thoroughly. In the bedroom where I had planned to lie down, there were two doors, one leading to the bathroom and another to a clothes closet. Both could be closed, and behind each a man could crouch. Another man could be stationed behind the hidden panel door leading into the other suite, and still another in the front room behind the closet door.

There was nothing else I could do, I decided. Then, from the corner of my brain devoted to our camouflaging chatter, I put another question to Olga, pitching my voice high, as I had been doing. I wished the sinister listener on the balcony to miss no word of our colloquy.

"What in the world is that husband of yours doing?" I asked. "He said he would be back here directly."

"He probably has been 'buttonholed'—isn't that what you say over here? — by someone at the party," she said. "But I am sure he'll be here very shortly."

Her words were prophetic. They hardly had left her lips before her husband's knock sounded upon the door. As I passed Olga to open it, I gave her a really unnecessary warning from the corner of my mouth.

Veritzen Brings News.

"Better keep up the chatter, and ask Philip something about the party."

"I will," she murmured back, and as her husband came through the door she put a gay query.

"Is anybody getting tired at the party?" she asked. "Does anybody show any sign of getting ready to leave?"

Before Philip answered her, he whispered a hasty message to me.

"Your men have arrived and are in the adjoining suite. We will carry on here while you see them."

I nodded, and he answered Olga's query.

"I think they're all planning to stay until daylight," he said. "But the party is getting a bit out of hand because of your absence. And the ones who are not dancing are grumbling a bit because Madge has not come back. How soon do you two think you can come over?"

Here is a "flash" on what to serve with tomato juice cocktail or fish appetizers. Mash half a cup of avocado, add a little salad dressing, pep up with lemon juice, salt and paprika, and spread on small crackers or toast rounds. Serve browned and warm.

Cheese- stuffed fruits are delicious new tidbits to serve with afternoon tea. Select medium-sized cooked prunes and apricots. Stuff with cream cheese and chill.

Big Brother Can Help a Small Child

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Because I have to hear and read, day in and day out, so many accounts of bickering, quarrelling and fighting, you might suppose that I am pessimistic about family happiness ever being a reality.

But I am not. I employ enough psychology to know that parents are far more likely to tell or write of their pains than their pleasures, of their defeats in family relationships than their victories, and of their sorrows than their joys. Nevertheless, some do write me of their successes. Indeed, some describe relationships between brothers, between sisters or between brother and sister that appear ideal. Besides, I have witnessed some of these relationships myself.

Helpful Big Brother.

Let me describe one big brother-little brother relationship. Nine years separate them. The elder, from his very early years, acquired keen interest and skill in making and creating things. By the time he entered high school he had developed a fine work shop with many good tools, most of which he had bought with his allowance.

When Big Brother was in the work shop, his little brother often was there too, marveling at the wonderful things Big Brother was making and helping when he could. Little Brother had learned to be careful of his brother's things and the big brother had been generous in letting the little boy use them when he proved able to do so.

The older boy seemed never to weary of answering the younger one's question, and this relation has continued to this day when they occasionally are together at the respective ages of 26 and 17.

Emulating Older Brother.

Emulating the older, the younger lad also developed a work shop, having inherited and supplemented that of the elder. While Big Brother was in junior and senior high school he was constantly asked by Little Brother to explain things and help do things too hard for the younger. As a result, the younger schooled himself in a vast deal of basic scientific information bearing on physics and chemistry, even before entering high school. Incidentally the older brother gained by way of clarifying his own scientific concepts as he explained them to the eager younger brother.

For years, the younger lad, now a senior in high school, has been looking up to his elder brother, admiring his achievements and faithful study habits, deliberately trying to follow them, and has done well.

I could describe other relationships like these: so could many of my readers. It is such relationships I like to dwell upon as I think of the many happy families of today and vision still more families like them in the future. Nevertheless, all too few elder brothers and sisters realize what an inspiration they are or may be to a younger brother or sister. For further reading on this subject let me refer you to my book, "The Modern Family," which you probably will find in your public library.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. I am enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Please send me your sheets of simple addition and subtraction facts. I want them for my 12-year-old daughter who has a hard time with arithmetic.

A. They were sent, gladly, and will be to others who write me at 235 East 45th Street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp.

"The Authority on Authorities"

SHORTEN DUMMY TRUMPS

Ordinarily a defender likes to prevent the declarer from ruffing tricks with the short trump holding, which usually is in the dummy. For that purpose, trumps are led, so the declarer will have to use two trumps on a trick. But there is one kind of situation in which defenders should wish to make the dummy ruff. That is when the trumps seem likely to become re-entries for a side suit. Making the dummy ruff will then keep the declarer from using those trumps as late enough entries after the dummy's suit is set up

Here was a deal on which two duplicate declarers furnished neat play, one making his contract by one method, the other by a different one, due to a different defense. Where West led his club 2, Dummy won with the K, used the A for discard of the heart 7, then led a third, ruffing it and so eliminating the Q. The diamond K and A then put the declarer in position to play the last two clubs for discards of his last two hearts, so that he lost only a spade trick.

At the other table, West reasoned that North, with two rebiddable suits and enough diamonds to support them to slam, might be very short of hearts, probably blank. He led his heart a purposely to make the dummy ruff, so a late round of trumps could not be won in the dummy as re-entries after clubs got set up. The declarer ruffed this with the dummy's diamond 10, laid down two top clubs for disposal of his second heart, ruffed a third club to get into his own hand, then led his heart 10 for a ruff by the diamond A.

A third declarer got the same club lead, won by the K, then made the silly lead of the spade 2 to the Q. West led back the heart A to be ruffed by the diamond 10. The club A furnished a discard of the heart 9, the club 3 was trumped by the diamond 2 and the last heart ruffed by the diamond A. Had West returned a trump when he won that trick, South would have been beaten. Both sides analyzed the situation badly.

If West leads the 5 of clubs, which East had bid, how should the latter play to beat South's 3-No Trumps?

Truth About Hair Dyeing Reported

By MME. QUI VIVE

For the benefit of those readers of this column who are thinking of changing their white tresses to the pristine coloring of their youthful days, your beauty reporter sought out a man who has been an expert in hair dyeing and bleaching for many years. At such a critical time when a woman considers this step it is a help to get authoritative information.

"Twenty years ago," he said, "hair dyeing was considered in the light of taste and, in the opinion of many, only very speedy or silly women had their locks tinted But today we realize that changing the color of the hair, if done in a scientific manner and accomplished successfully, is a great help in retaining youthful appearance.

"There are three reasons for attempting the transformation: to change gray hair back to its original color, to improve upon the natural tone, to bring over-bleached hair back to a normal condition.

"There came to me one day a girl of seventeen whose hair had turned white. Who could blame her for seeking relief from such a misfortune? It interfered with her social life, made her self conscious. Boys steered clear of her, considering her older than her years. Her hair was dyed, still is, and she is a much happier young woman.

There is the married woman who goes gray prematurely, looks older than her husband. She realizes that the art of hair coloring is not a vain luxury, but something that adds a real value to human existance.

"The business woman, depending upon her earnings for a living, is grateful when an experienced operator does away with the white crown, substitutes one that is the original shade, restores youthful appearance.

"Home dyeing is not always successful. One must have the right medium. There are many excellent coloring agents, each one suitable for certain shades and certain conditions. To make a chance selection is to invite trouble. Very often we have frantic women coming into the shop hoping that we can correct the mistakes they have made. When one dye has been applied on another, it is extremely difficult to produce a becoming shade.

"We have difficulties dealing with women who want their hair dyed. They have definite ideas on a subject about which they know nothing. Consider the blond whose tresses have darkened. She asks for a peroxide rinse. Very well, she gets it. It brightens the tarnished threads, is satisfactory. In six weeks she is back for another. It won't do; she will have the bleached look, which is painfully artificial.

"What she needs is a touch up at the roots. Great care must be exercised when that is done, so that applications will not overlap. Bleaching must be accomplished quickly, it must be watched, the hair shampooed at precisely the right moment so that the delicate shafts will not weaken."

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, June 18.

A FAIRLY active day is read from the prevailing planetary influences, although on the whole they may not be interpreted as giving great assistance to promote the affair in hand. There are several angles for duplicity, fraud, misrepresentation and intrigue, especially as concerns travel, writings, all forms of communication, whether directed toward business ends or in relation to social, sentimental or household associations. Things of a high order in art, poetry, music or any creative expression are fortified.

Those whose birthday it is may have a fairly active and lively year, but one not free from disappointment, treachery, intrigue and peculiar dangers. These are subtle as well as grave, unless complete discretion and vigilance be exercised in all manner of contacts, both business and intimate. Travel, correspondence and contracts of all natures call for wariness. Romantic intrigues may present peculiar slants. The most propitious rule is concerned with higher aspects of creative art, drama, beauty, mysticism or idealism.

A child born on this day may have energy and initiative although its trends will be in the higher forms of art, music, poetry, drama, romance and idealistic aspirations. It may encounter more sordid relations.

BOARD OF EDUCATION EMPLOYS 4 TEACHERS, 13 OTHER WORKERS

Four teachers and 13 secretaries, clerks and other school employes were hired last night by the Mansfield board of education for the 1941-42 school year.

The board granted three teachers leaves-of-absence and accepted the resignation of Miss Theresa Hallabrin as clerk at the Bowman school. No one was employed to replace her.

New teachers employed by the board were V. O. Smith, Albany, O., to teach commercial subjects at Senior high school; Robert Wendland, 333 Harker street, history teacher at John Simpson junior high school; Mrs. Helyn Brown, 454 South Main street, and Miss Winifred Black, Ashland, elementary instructors.

All of them have been teaching from three to seven years. Mrs. Brown has been a teacher in the Lincoln Heights school. They received one-year contracts.

Leaves-of-absence for the 1941-42 term were granted Edwin Fensch, history instructor at John Simpson junior high school; L. C. Baumgardner, Senior high teacher, and Miss Wilma Snider, Senior high physical education instructor.

Fensch and Baumgardner plan to take advanced work in education, with Fensch completing requirements for a Doctor of Philosophy degree. Miss Snider will be an assistant in the physical education department at Ohio State university while she studies for a master's degree.

Re-employed for another year were Miss Anne M. Arron, secretary to Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller; Miss Phyllis Underwood, assistant secretary to the superintendent; Miss Mary Holmes, secretary in the superintendent's office; Miss Gerry Hartman, secretary to J. B. Moke, superintendent of buildings; Miss Emily Brown, clerk at Senior high school; Miss Virginia Palmer, clerk at Johnny Appleseed junior high school, and Miss Naomi Stutz, clerk at John Simpson junior high school.

Other school employes who received contracts included Mrs. Cleo Buchter, cook at the Sunshine school; Mrs. Deborah Wood, cook at the deaf school; Mrs. Pearl Hardesty, Mrs. Ethel Irvine, and Mrs. Bertha Hollinger, matrons, and Matthew Elias, equipment room attendant.

The board gave J. Merton Holcombe, band instructor in the schools, a $150 increase in pay for the year for his summer work with the bands. He will give lessons in instrumental music, conduct rehearsals and several open-air band concerts.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

SNAKE BOUNTIES

LAKE GEORGE, N. Y.—(INS)—Warren County, N. Y., paid out $169.59 in rattlesnake bounties, at the rate of $2.50 each, during the past fiscal year, according to a report presented to the board of supervisors. Of this amount $162 was paid in the town of Bolton and $7.50 in the town of Hague.

Cites Electrical Power Needs In Arms Production

PORTLAND, Ore.—(INS)—The manufacture of 700 tons of bombs takes enough electrical energy to supply 2,500 average Americans for for a year, according to Ivan Bloch, chief of the Bonneville power administration's market development program.

"It can be further calculated that an average pursuit plane, including the engine, composed of various metals weighing approximately 18,000 pounds, will require the amazing figure of approximately 130,000 kilowatt-hours for production," Bloch declared recently.

"For the production of 10,000 such planes, it would require almost as much electric power as the entire state of Oregon consumes in a year."

Bloch pointed to the national power developments in the Pacific northwest as a major source of electrical energy that can be used by manufacturers in the national defense program.

CCC DENTISTS ACTIVE

DENVER—(INS)—More than 24,000 teeth—almost a tooth per man—were yanked from the mouths of CCC enrollees in Colorado and Wyoming during 1940, a regional report issued in Denver revealed. During the same period, CCC dentists filled and repaired 54,000 teeth in regional camps. This will put the enrollees in perfect shape to bite into 200 sides of beef, 360 hogs and 41,000 dozen eggs a month as they toil on conservation projects.

2-Way Probe Under Way In Sex-Slaying

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

You Can't Print That!

(A compendium of tales that can't be told with names, because they're too true to print. If you find in them resemblance to actual persons, living or dead, you've probably guessed right!)

* * *

BARBARA was a pretty little New York model a few years ago. Not one of the top-notchers, but just a girl who got along. Her beau — he absolutely worshipped her—was a young newspaper man. He used to get his friends on the gazettes to mention her once in a while, and eventually a film company gave her a screen test.

Dorothy Kilgallen

Funnily enough she had something the camera found interesting, and soon she was on her way to Hollywood.

Larry, her boy friend, couldn't bear life without her, so he had himself transferred to Los Angeles.

But as Barbara began to rise to success in the movies, he found it more and more difficult to get a date with her. So he was more than overjoyed when one day she consented to make a flying trip back East with him to visit their families and take in a big football game at the college where he himself had played.

* * *

He bought their tickets out of his meager savings, but on the day of their scheduled departure Barbara said retakes would keep her in Hollywood an extra day. She told him to go on ahead, and promised she'd meet him the next day in Manhattan.

So Larry went on alone—and he never heard another word from her. She never showed up in New York. He returned to the coast.

Back in his Los Angeles newspaper office a few days later Larry was sitting at his desk when a flash came over the wires that Barbara had married another man—in Detroit, where she had gone on the ticket Larry had bought her!

Well, Larry read the news and, as you can imagine, saw red. He went straight to Barbara's house (her husband had stayed in the East) and slapped her face. Then he went home and got tight and wrote her a letter warning her that the next time he saw her he might sock her even harder—just for luck.

And what did Barbara do? She went to the FBI with her note, and told the G-men she was a movie star who was getting threatening letters from "a man." The G-men nabbed Larry immediately and slapped him in jail!

But you can't print that. Larry's back in New York, dazed and trying to figure out what makes women tick. Nobody's going to give him the answer to that one.

* * *

Josie is a beautiful burlesque queen, whose glamor and occasional hi-jinks around the Broadway circuit have taken her out of the honky-tonk class and into the gossip columns. She started her career by just peeling off her clothes to music, but now she's practically chic.

Josie has lots of admirers, of course—but there are just two lads she really loves. They don't know about each other, naturally—or Joe wouldn't be buying her orchids and farmhouses, and Jack wouldn't be buying her orchids and fur coats.

Joe and Jack have never met—but they may, some day, professionally. Because their paths often cross. Jack, you see, is a stalwart arm of the law, an ace detective—and Joe is head of the number racket in a nearby city!

* * *

But you can't print that! Wanna start something?

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Making movies is the most fun there is.

Especially on the last day of a movie that has been going on for a dozen weeks.

ROBBIN COONS

Especially on a last sequence that has the bobbles.

It's Rosalind Russell and Clark Gable in "The Uniform." Or maybe it's "Unholy Partners," or something else by now. The director, Clarence Brown, hopes it isn't "Unholy Partners" because all that title reminds him of is Lon Chaney, and his picture should be called "Cheating Cheaters" if M-G-M owned the title and if the title weren't already on a play and picture.

The last sequence is simple. Setting is a British military post in the Orient, General Reginald Owen's office. Owen sits behind his desk, Scotland Yard Inspector Matthew Bolton paces the floor behind him, an orderly holds a 'phone waiting for a connection to Bolton's headquarters. Bolton is irate because that man, Gable, and that woman, Russell, have escaped again. He is especially irate because General Owen appears to have aided the escape. Gable being in a captain's uniform.

After fuming and raging to Owen, Inspector Bolton storms out the door and bumps headlong into his quarry, Gable and Russell, as they enter.

"Excuse me," he says absently, and exists.

But outside the door he does a "takem," turns sharply and stalks back into the room, staring.

Then there's the business of the reformed thieves turning back the jools, and that's about all.

* * *

Simple sequence—quite. But it's like a golf course where the fairway is all traps. Everything depends on timing, on inflection, on the right gesture at the right time, and Director Brown is a stickler. Rehearsal, rehearsal, rehearsal, and a take.

"No," says Brown, "not that way—a little less temper. Let's do it again."

Again a take. "We'll print that one," says Brown, "and try it again." They do, and by now the dialogue is taking a queer turn. When the orderly, eager for his cut, says "It's headquarters for you, Inspector," the words come out something like "It's quarsheadzhdzoo—I'm sorry," and then it's another take.

Chatter Corner

(Just jottings about people you know, as they're seen here and there about town.)

O. C. Kalbfleisch and Ray Hines chuckling over pictures of leading Republicans at their recent steakfry. . . . Employes in the health department cleaning house while Health Commissioner R. C. Rehder is vacationing in Nebraska.

* * *

F. M. Bushnell, Democratic mayoralty candidate, paying a short visit to the Municipal building. . . . Detectives Lee Remy telling of an unfortunate fishing experience. . . . Ernie Adams riding his red truck up South Diamond street right on the stroke of 8 a. m.

DIES FOLLOWING BRIEF ILLNESS

Mrs. Florence Weddle Succumbs At Home of Niece.

PERRYSVILLE—Mrs. Florence Weddle, 68, died yesterday at the home of her niece, Mrs. Thomas Metcalf, Wooster, following a brief illness. She was a former resident of Perrysville and had lived in Wooster during the past 12 years.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Ethel Thoms, and a brother, Edward W. Miller, both of Perrysville.

The body will remain at the McIntire funeral home in Wooster until Thursday when it will be taken to St. John's Lutheran church, Perrysville, at 1:30 p. m. Services will be held at the church at 2:30 p. m., with Rev. Philip Schrack officiating. Interment will be in Greenlawn cemetery here.

OFFICIALS OF ALCOA CALLED BEFORE SENATE

Asked To Testify on Charges By Ickes That Company Was 'Recalcitrant.'

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The senate defense investigating committee summoned Aluminum Company of America officials to testify today on charges by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes that their firm had been "recalcitrant" in co-operating in the national defense program.

In the house, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson was called before the rivers and harbors committee to open the administration's campaign for congressional approval of the U. S.-Canadian agreement for developing the $226,000,000 St. Lawrence seaway and power project. An increase in power facilities has been urged as a means of stepping up aluminum production.

Ickes told the committee yesterday that "When the story of this war comes to be written, if it has to be written that it was lost, it may be because of the recalcitrance of the Aluminum Company of America." He added that "You can get aluminum in greater quantities if you aren't too polite to Alcoa."

Elsewhere in congress interest centered on efforts of the house military affairs committee to get acceptance of its version of the Connally "plant seizure" bill. That measure, like the proposal reducing the draft age top from 36 to 28, is an amendment to the selective service act.

It removed from the president discretionary authority to defer selective service registrants who have reached the age of 28 and inserted its own declaration that men of this age shall be exempt from military service after July 1. The word deferment was retained but the bill carries no method for removing the deferment. As a result of the measure has the effect of amending the draft law to make the exemption age of eligibility 28 instead of 36.

The house group rewrote the plant seizure provisions of the senate bill even more drastically. The bill introduced by Sen. Tom Connally, D., Tex., and approved by the senate authorized the president to commandeer struck plants. The only limitation was in an amendment by Sen. Joseph H. Ball, R., Minn., requiring that mediation efforts be exhausted before this authority is exercised.

PAY BOOSTED

Westinghouse Employes to Get $75,000 More This Month.

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company officials announced today that more than 5,000 employes in the Mansfield plant will receive an additional $75,000 this month in accordance with the company's wage and salary adjustment plan.

The adjustment will amount to 11 per cent of the workers' base-rate earnings which are expected to amount to about $700,000.

Officials said that the adjustments are made monthly to allow employes to share in profit increases. Last month, workers also received an 11 per cent salary adjustment figured on a $1,000,000 payroll. The May payroll, however, was figured on a five-week month while this month will only consider four weeks.

Chicago's First Subway Rapidly Nears Completion

CHICAGO—(INS)—Chicago's first subway, built with novel machinery which has attracted the attention of engineers the world over, today entered its third year of construction with the job 83 per cent completed.

Since construction started, a total of 86,318 feet of single tube and portal approaches have been tunneled out, chiefly with a gigantic "biscuit cutter" operated by pushing a huge cutting plate along with powerful hydraulic packs. Twenty-two passenger stations are under construction.

When completed, the subway will be 8.75 miles long and will have cost more than $45,000,000. Funds were provided by the federal public works administration. Approximately 1,000 feet of single tube are all that remain to be dug.

PEDESTRIAN KILLED

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Suburban Garfield Heights recorded its first traffic death in nearly two years today as William Froehlich, 61, died of injuries received last Friday. Garfield Heights police said Froehlich was injured when he became confused by heavy traffic and stepped into the path of an oncoming automobile.

OHIO SOLDIERS SEE 'ACTION'

Camp Shelby Troops 'Battle' 32nd Division as Part of Summer Maneuvers.

(By Associated Press)

LEESVILLE, La.—The 37th Division from Ohio, deployed in the Kisatchie National Forest, "battled" the 32nd Division today in the opening of summer maneuvers.

Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler of Columbus commanded the 37th in its action against troops from Michigan and Wisconsin, and umpires were close at hand to see who won. The 32nd is under the command of Maj. Gen. Irving A. Fish.

The maneuvers are the Ohioans' first large-scale operations under simulated war conditions, and are the first phase of the concluding part of their year's training in the south. Some 18,000 Ohio National Guardsmen and selectees were involved against a similar number in the 32nd.

Operations now under way were described by the army as a dress rehearsal for more intensive action scheduled for September between all units of the third army, of which the 37th is a unit.

Realism in the maneuvers is carried even to reproduction of battle sounds. Amplifying trucks broadcast recorded sounds of attacking bombing planes, the chatter of machine gun fire, and the thunder of artillery. Officers said that soldiers in the field responded with more effectiveness under this background of realism.

The 37th was moved here for the maneuvers from Camp Shelby, Miss., where the troops have been in training.

ARREST DRIVER

Police Charge Taxi Lacked Proper Governor.

A Mansfield taxicab driver was arrested for speeding and driving without a chauffeur's license and his employer was charged with violation of a taxicab ordinance by city police late yesterday.

Richard Van Dyne, manager of DeLuxe Taxicab company, was charged with permitting one of his cabs to operate without an adequate governor after Donald E. Stevens, 122 East Fourth street, one of his drivers, was arrested for speeding.

Police said they clocked Stevens going 42 miles an hour on West Fifth street and reported that he had no chauffeur's license. A test of the governor made on Marion avenue, according to police, showed that the cab could reach 60 miles per hour. Both cases were set for a hearing tomorrow morning before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court.

MIDDLETOWN YOUTH ELECTED 'GOVERNOR' OF BOYS' STATE

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—With 17-year-old "Governor" Robert Hoskins of Middletown at the helm, nearly 800 boys lived today in a political domain entirely of their own making.

Inauguration of city and county officials was all that remained before the American Legion-sponsored government study project began functioning like a "grown-up" American political entity.

Hoskins—one of 787 Ohio high school youths participating in the governmental procedure scheme—and his entire "federalist" ticket were swept into state offices in yesterday's balloting and sworn in last night by Ohio Supreme Court Judge Charles Zimmerman.

The boys, themselves, will administer oaths as the youthful electees of minor offices are sworn today, and the Ohio state fairgrounds encampment takes on aspects of a bustling commonwealth.

Gov. John W. Bricker will visit the encampment today and Lieut. Gov. Paul Herbert will speak tonight.

These key officers will assist Hoskins in steering their own ship of state: lieutenant governor, Roy Fanoni of Akron; secretary of state, Hayes Metzger of Wilmington; treasurer, Robert C. Davis of Richwood, auditor, Wayne C. Steffel of Salem, and attorney general, Robert E. Simmons of Lima.

SIGNS ORDER

Judge Begins Reorganization of Erie Railroad.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Reorganizing of the Erie railroad began today with the signing of an order by Federal Judge Robert N. Wilkin confirming the interstate commerce commission's plan of reorganization.

Judge Wilkin also signed an order confirming the designation of five reorganization managers.

The five are J. K. Thompson of Cleveland, vice-president of the Erie railroad; Frank C. Wright, Reconstruction Finance Corp. attorney; Harry C. Hagerty, treasurer of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company; John W. Stedman, vice president of the Prudential Insurance company, and Harry S. Sturgis, vice president of the First National Bank of New York. The last four are from New York.

Up and Down THE STREET

Life has many small problems but City Auditor Paul Kelley has just one more than the rest of us. Between the constant rains and the awnings on the windows of his office, Kelley finds it difficult to concentrate on other matters. The rains have filled the folds of the awnings several times in the past week. When the awnings are down, there is little light in the office. When they are raised they become filled with water. Kelley is thinking of applying for venetian blinds.

* * *

H. E. Homberger, postmaster, is just a little perplexed. He knows that some people put garbage in the garbage can and that some bury it in the back yard. In fact, he'll even admit that some people take it out in the country and dump it there, but here's a new one: someone is dumping refuse in the postoffice wastebaskets. Naturally, Homberger and the federal government don't like that, and you can bet the offender isn't going to like what's in store for him when he gets caught, either.

* * *

Re-decoration of the Y. W. C. A. was the main topic of conversation around the building today. The upstairs club room and also the combined kitchen and recreation room downstairs are both to be repainted and club room furniture is to be re-upholstered. New shrubbery for both front and rear lawns is included in the program.

* * *

Prospects were brighter today that Richland county's stray dogs will be getting at least a temporary home as a member of city council announced that he would request passage of an ordiance leasing a parcel of land to the county for use as a dog pound. County commissioners have been seeking a centrally located spot for the pound for several weeks. Fred Miller, Fifth Ward councilman, said that he thought the city would lease the county a 75 foot square plot of land southwest of the city's sewage disposal plant for a ten-year period.

DIES AGED 78

Ontario Resident Was Native of Virginia.

GALION—James Thomas Paylor, 78, died at his home in Ontario early today after an illness of three years. He was born Nov. 6, 1862 in Frederick county, Va.

Besides his wife, a son, Robert Paylor of near Crestline; a daughter, Mrs. Anna Burson, Sparta; three sisters living in Virginia, seven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren, survive.

The body has been taken to the Volk funeral home, Galion. Services will be held Thursday at 2 p. m., in the Ontario Community church with Rev. E. H. Thompson in charge. Burial will be in Ontario cemetery.

NURSERY CRISIS

Chicago Diaper and Laundry Service Drivers Strike.

CHICAGO —(INS)— There was a nursery crisis in Chicago today because of a strike of 10 drivers for the Wee-Folks Diaper and Laundry service, hundreds of infants faced the prospect of going without their three-cornered pants.

A spokesman for the company said the service launders about 40,000 diapers weekly. He Shuddered to think of the consequences of a prolonged strike. "If I was sure how many babies 40,000 diapers represent," he said, "I'd probably have a stroke."

FEDERAL MEN JOIN SEARCH FOR MURDERER

Assist Washington Police In Attempt To Solve Death of Girl Secretary.

(Picture On Page 2)

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — War department intelligence men today joined with Washington police in attempting to solve the sex-slaying of Miss Jessie Elizabeth Strieff, of Des Moines, Iowa, pretty 23-year-old secretary for the office of chief of ordnance.

Faced with a congressional probe the police said that there were no new developments since the girl's unclad body was found yesterday in a garage in the rear of a George Washington University professor's home, just a short distance from the spot where Mrs. Rose Abramowitz was criminally assaulted last March.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said that the girl was strangled to death by a man who tightened a strand of "some material" around her neck so viciously it cut in her flesh, leaving a mark a half-inch wide.

Homicide detectives questioned James Fairfax, 55, negro janitor of the apartment house where Miss Strieff lived, and a grocery clerk, but admitted that no tangible clues have been turned up as yet. The latter had been missing from a nearby store, but he proved that he had spent the day in Pennsylvania.

No trace has been found of the blue, two-piece play suit or the bright blue raincoat worn by the brunet when she left her apartment Sunday to buy some butter to use for the dinner she was cooking for her fiancee, Stanley Le Blanc, 26. Her body was nude except for a pair of yellow socks and sport shoes.

Small drops of blood leading through the alley, police said, were evidence that the secretary had been criminally attacked before the killer carried and dragged her body into the metal garage behind the home of Dr. DeWitt O. Croissant, professor emeritus of English at George Washington. The body was found by a servant of the Croissant home.

The coroner said that it appeared that Miss Strieff had put up a "terrific struggle" in attempting to fight off her murderer.

There was a deep scratch on the right side of her neck apparently made by a finger nail and there were abrasions on her back and legs indicating she was dragged into the garage by her shoulders or her hair.

Police are working on several angles to the case. Owner of the grocery store where Miss Strieff purchased the butter said that while she was in the store an automobile was parked double outside. He could not say whether she entered the car, however, upon leaving his establishment.

Benjamin Brent, whose home has an entrance into the alley where the girl's body was found, told police he had seen a man emerge from the garage early yesterday and said he believed he would be able to identify him.

1941 OSU Grads First To Receive Diplomas By Mail

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Ohio State university's graduating class of 1941 went down in university annals as the first group to get its diplomas by mail.

The 1,601 graduates were ready and willing last night to receive their sheepskins with the usual formalities, but the festivities were spoiled by a downpour that drenched 10,000 spectators at the university stadium.

When it began to rain early in the proceedings, spectators and the class moved under the stadium, but crowded in the dim light and it was virtually impossible to hear the commencement addresses.

President Howard L. Bevis told the graduates they faced a "double challenge"—to stake your all upon the freedoms of democracy and to give those freedoms content and substantial form."

FUNERAL SET

Rites to Be Held Tomorrow For Mrs. George Heath.

SHELBY—Funeral services for Mrs. George Heath who died yesterday of a heart attack, will be held Wednesday at 10 a. m. at the Most Pure Heart of Mary Catholic church with the Rev. Father M. A. McFadden in charge.

Burial will be in the Shelby parish cemetery. Friends may call at the Sutter funeral home before the services.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Bobby Strawbridge, polo playing chairman of the National Sports Committee of the U. S. O., or United Service Organizations for National Defense Inc., lists as his first request from the sports world that:

"Men in Army, Navy or Marine uniforms be admitted to sports events at reduced prices, or even admitted free."

The Ohio State league this spring beat him to the punch on that one. At their meeting here in Mansfield just before the season opened, the O. S. loop moguls voted to admit all uniformed men in Uncle Sam's armed forces free to all league games.

* * *

While the league is not in an army camp area, each club has had its share of uniformed guests among the boys home on furlough.

Since the soldiers, sailors and marines need no tickets to walk through the Ohio State league gates, it's impossible to check on how many have taken advantage of the loop's hospitality, just as it's impossible to estimate the good will gained by the circuit through this gesture.

* * *

If there's a hurler in pitching heaven
It must be that guy Eddie Evans.

* * *

The star moundsman of the Lima Pandas has really been mowin' 'em down. Beside setting a new Ohio State league single game strikeout record of 23 against Tiffin, Evans has been averaging better than 16 strikeouts per game.

When he whiffed 17 Findlay Oilers last Friday night, Eddie boosted his total to 99 in six games. Life is just one breeze after another for Eddie.

* * *

City Editor and Lions clubber Johnny Schroeder insists that headline in Sunday's News-Journal: LIONS CLUB STAGES CHARITY GAME FOR BRAVES WEDNESDAY, should have read: LIONS CLUB STAGES CHARITY GAME FOR BLIND WEDNESDAY.

And how many baseball fans do you think would chip in for charity for umpires?

* * *

Seriously, the Lions have a worthy cause for their big baseball party tomorrow night, relief of Mansfield's sightless and near sightless, and advance ticket sales indicate the city's baseball fans are giving their full support.

HONOR GEHRIG MEMORY

NEW YORK—(INS)—The memory of Lou Gehrig, famed first baseman of the New York Yankees, will be perpetuated by the naming of a street intersection in his honor only a few hundred yards from the Yankee Stadium where his exploits earned him baseball immortality.

Yankees Overawe Indians

Tribe Infield Boots Game Away In Eighth.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(AP Sports Writer)

THE New York Yankees have a psychological edge over their rivals whenever they get rolling high and handsome in their present manner.

In winning their eighth consecutive game yesterday they appeared to overawe the Cleveland Indians—and this should be a danger signal for the rest of the American league.

* * *

The Bombers didn't outhit the Indians and they didn't outpitch them yesterday, but they won, 6-4, and cut Cleveland's fireplace margin to a single game.

* * *

The Tribe had a 4-3 lead by the time the Yankees came to bat in the eighth inning and Lefty Al Milnar was looking better than he had at the start of the game. Then his infield went to pieces, donating the Yankees three unearned runs.

With one out Joe Gordan singled. Charley Keller forced him and just escaped a double play which would have ended the inning. Little Phil Rizzuto waited out a walk. Pinchhitter Red Ruffing tapped a roller to Shortstop Lou Boudreau, who fumbled it long enough to let Ruffing reach first and load the bases. Pinchhitter Bill Dickey slapped a sharp grounder right under First Baseman Hal Trosky's glove for a single, scoring two runs, and then Second Baseman Ray Mack booted a grounder by Red Roilfe to let in the final tally.

Cleveland moved on to Philadelphia hoping tonight's contest with the A's under the light would change their luck.

The Washington Senators downed the Detroit Tigers, 3-1, in the only other American league game yesterday.

* * *

In the National league the New York Giants shut out the Cincinnati Reds, 6-0, on the three-hit hurling of Bill Lohrman and the wildness of John Vander Meer and Gene (Junior) Thompson.

* * *

The Chicago Cubs cuffed the Phillies, 3-1, with a fielding show in which Babe Dahlgren, their new first baseman, played an important part. He handled a dozen chances and participated in three double plays, two of which were routed by home plate.

Big Ten Stars Trek To Coast

Meet Western Champs In Annual Dual Meet.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Invaders from the midwest were expected to shine in individual feats of speed and strength, but track and field stars of the far flung Pacific coast conference were heavily favored to defeat the pick of the Big Ten in their annual dual clash tonight.

* * *

The meet, coming as a final tuneup for the N. C. A. A. championships this week-end at Palo Alto, shaped up as the greatest dual engagement of the 1941 season and one likely to produce record breaking performances.

* * *

Outstanding marks were predicted in the one mile relay, discus throw and high jump. The relay figured to be a battle between quartets of the University of California and University of Southern California.

Indiana's Archie Harris appeared to be a standout in the discus (best mark 174 feet, one inch), and Oregon's Les Steers hoped to improve upon his newly claimed world high jump record of six feet, 10 7-8 inches.

The coast aggregation will be shooting for its fifth straight team triumph over the Big Ten since the series was started in 1937.

PASTOR BEATS SCOTT

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Bob Pastor today moved nearer another shot at Joe Louis' heavyweight crown today after taking a 10 round decision from Buddy Scott of Dallas, Tex.

Deadpan? Not Joe Louis!

Whoever was it that said Joe Louis was a deadpan? These intimate photos, made at Joe's training camp at Greenwood Lake, N. Y., seem to refute that statement.

Millers Snatch Redbirds' Lead

(By Associated Press)

All those Minneapolis sluggers needed was a bit of home cooking.

The fence-busting Millers are back in first place and looking more like league leaders every day. But only a few days ago they wound up a road trip in fourth place, sliding all the way from the top perch while away from their snug little park.

* * *

They won their fifth straight game last night, a rambunctious 14 to 9 victory over Columbus. The loss shoved the Redbirds from the top spot to fourth, but they are only half a game behind Louisville and Kansas City, virtually tied for second place.

* * *

Kansas City conquered Indianapolis, 7 to 5, and Oscar Judd pitched Louisville to a 6 to 3 decision over Milwaukee, which now is being operated by League President George Trautman until the franchise is sold.

Toledo crushed St. Paul, 11 to 3, before an overflow crowd of 13,500 scoring six runs in the fifth.

SECREET LICKS ARON

CHICAGO—(INS)— Sammy Secreet, youthful Canonsburg, Pa., welterweight, added Milt Aron, Chicago veteran, to his list of victims today and prepared to angle for a bout with Champion Fritzie Zivic. It was his eighth straight win in only one year of professional campaigning.

ASKS COOPERATION

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)— State Conservation Commissioner Don Waters today urged sportsmen to cooperate in protecting wildlife during breeding and nesting seasons by not allowing their dogs to run without supervision.

ENGLISH DERBY SET FOR WARTIME RACE

NEWMARKET, Eng.—(U.P.)—The English Derby, usually the world's greatest sporting event and the occasion of a massed holiday for Londoners, will be run for the 162nd time without an interruption tomorrow, but for the second straight year all resemblance to the customary gay derby scene at Epsom Downs will be blacked out by the war.

Joe Impresses Boxing Artist

Champion Trains Hard For Scrap With Conn.

(Editor's Note: Robert Riggs, Philadelphia artist noted for his lithographs of fighters and circus scenes, visited Joe Louis' training camp to watch the champion in action and to sketch him. The smooth efficiency of the Louis camp impressed Riggs and he has written the story of his trip for The Mansfield News-Journal Special News Service.)

* * *

By ROBERT RIGGS

GREENWOOD LAKE, N. Y.—(The Special News Service)—Joe Louis told me he had slowed up some in the ring.

Maybe so, but he still hits fast enough—fast enough and hard enough, too.

* * *

At least that was the impression he gave me as I watched him in action training for his fight with Billy Conn.

* * *

When we arrived at Louis' camp, neither Louis nor any member of his staff was to be seen. The only evidence that the camp existed was a sign announcing the time of the next workout.

It was in sharp contrast to Conn's Pompton Lakes camp where the place bustled with people and noise.

After some 15 minutes, his press representative sauntered in. Louis, he said was visiting a reform school.

Some four minutes later his secretary sauntered in. One of Louis' managers arrived and was introduced.

He, as well as the others, was quietly courteous. After a time someone said that Louis was probably in his dressing room. And so he was.

The whole place is run in a quiet, tranquil manner. Smooth and thorough.

* * *

Joe's skipping rope has ball-bearings in the handles! I don't know if this is unique or not but I never saw it before and it seemed typical of the entire champ.

* * *

Louis is a very quiet man and speaks less than most people, but he smiles often enough and at the right times and answers questions with easy and quite engaging candor.

I liked him. And he is big. Some athletes seem to increase in size the closer they are seen. Louis does.

As I looked at his arms, I was conscious in each case of surprise at their size.

He trained hard. He seemed grim. He seemed confident, but grimly determined to take no chances.

He stalked his opponents every second, too. No blocking, just attack.

* * *

A two hundred pounder threw a medicine ball, full force, against Louis' abdomen some ten or 12 times.

* * *

After the last impast Louis remarked that someone must have put lead in that ball. But he spoke the words absolutely normally. Apparently he had as much breath in him as ever.

WALKER FAVORED

COLUMBUS—(INS)— Jack (Buddy) Walker, Columbus negro heavyweight contender, today reigned a slight favorite over Tony Shucco, of Boston, in their scheduled 10-round bout tonight.

Golf Pros Get Break At Toledo

Earn 50 Bucks Per Day Regardless of Score.

By FRITZ HOWELL

TOLEDO—(AP)—One sure way of earning $50 a day and expenses is to get an invitation to play in the Inverness four-ball round-robin golf tournament scheduled Thursday through Sunday.

* * *

That's the least you can get in this happiest of all golf meccas, and if you're lucky enough to win, you can boost your daily "take" to almost $200—plus the aforementioned expenses.

* * *

It's about the only tourney in the land for which the competitors are guaranteed their expenses and a part of the prize dough, even if they finish last.

The seven-year-old fixture, offering $7,000 in cash to the field of 16, is shy a bit of its usual color this year, with swash-buckling Walter Hagen, Tommy Armour and Gene Sarazen among the missing. But the committee in charge of invitations has imported some new talent capable of living up to the birdie-eagle traditions constructed during the last six years.

In the field, paired as partners, are: Byron Nelson, host pro and national P. G. A. champion, and Jimmy Thomson, the game's longest driver; E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, and Ralph Guldahl, two-time national open king; Horton Smith and Lawson Little, who lost his national open crown a little more than a week ago; Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan, the little fellow who leads the money winners; Dick Metz and Clayton Haefner, winner of last week's Mahoning Valley open; Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta, who have won the invitational twice: Johnny Bulla and Sam Byrd, the former New York Yankee outfielder who is rated one of golf's "corners:" and Lloyd Mangrum and Harold (Jug) McSpaden.

* * *

Sam Snead, the West Virginia clouter, originally was paired with Guldahl, but he informed tourney officials yesterday that a back injury would prevent his playing and Harrison was invited to play with Guldahl. Snead and Guldahl won the invitational last year.

Crafty Lou Salica Retains Crown

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—Crafty, ring-wise Lou Salica of Brooklyn still is bantamweight champion of the world because he had a plan and stuck to it.

* * *

On the verge of losing his 118-pound title to Philadelphia's Tommy Forte for the second time in six months, he came from behind last night to gain an unanimous 15-round decision over the challenger before 14,500 at Shibe park.

* * *

Before entering the ring an 8 to 5 underdog because of Forte's excellent showing against him in January, Salica said he planned to win with a jab. That's exactly what he did.

Right from the start Forte found Salica's left stuck in his face. For five rounds it didn't slow up the challenger, but over the last 10 stanzas and especially from the eighth through the 13th Salica repeatedly stung Forte with jab after jab, seldom taking a punch in return.

The gross gate was announced as $27,692 and the net $26,308.

HIGH SCHOOL STAR SIGNS RED CONTRACT

WASHINGTON, Pa. — (U.P.) — Billy Sams, Trinity high school pitcher, today joined the Cincinnati Reds farm system.

Sams, strikeout king of the Western Pen sylvania Interscholastic Athletic league, with 200 to his credit, signed a Cincinnati contract and was sent to the Tucson, Ariz., club for seasoning.

Conn Bet Placed at 13-5 Mark

Sentimental Pittsburgh Fans Take Long Chance.

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(AP)—Their training completed, brash Billy Conn and big Joe Louis were scheduled to take things mutually easy today, merely fiddling around and resting up in preparation for tomorrow night's championship battle at the Polo grounds.

* * *

Billy, who surrendered his 175 pound title in order to get a crack at Louis' unlimited crown, was down for a limbering-up session in one of this city's smaller gymnasiums, while the champion remained at the cool of his training camp at Greenwood lake. They will weigh in tomorrow noon.

* * *

Both appear geared for a furious tussel. Business is booming at Promoter Mike Jacobs' ticket windows, the rush having caused Mike to smile benignly and predict a crowd of 40,000 and a gate of $400,000. The odds against Conn winning remain at 13 to 5, about where they belong.

Broadway hotels are filled with the fight crowd, and many more will pour in today and tonight from Pittsburgh on special trains and by car. The advance guard from the challenger's home town is backing Billy heavily at the odds, figuring he has a good chance of dethroning Joe by a decision in 15 rounds.

Most of Conn's backing stems from sentiment and the fact that Billy as a middleweight and a light-heavyweight turned in a brilliant and unbroken string of victories. The hard truth remains that tomorrow night's fight brings together a fine little man, whose ability to stand against even a top-ranking heavyweight has yet to be proved, and a great, big man who for four years has slaughtered all comers.

* * *

The build-up for this bout has been an amazing thing. Last summer, when Conn and his fidgety little manager, Johnny Ray, first began talking about fighting Joe Louis, they were good for many a hearty laugh around fight headquarters here.

* * *

Then Mike Jacobs became personally attached to the handsome boy from Pittsburgh. Billy, frequently Mike's house-guest, must have convinced the crusty old promoter that he might whip Louis. At any rate here is Conn about to fight the man-killer—and Billy isn't a bit better qualified than he was a year ago.

And approximately a third of the country's leading fight authorities, including some of those who laughed the hardest at Johnny Ray last summer, are picking Billy to win. To repeat, it's amazing.

If Billy lasts more than three rounds, it will be astounding.

McNeill Takes Easy Victory

CHICAGO — (AP) — Seventh-seeded Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Calif., was one of the few seeded players facing a serious test today in the second round of the National Clay Court tennis tournament at River Forest club.

Schroeder's opponent was southpaw Seymour Greenberg of suburban Evanston, two-time Big Ten champion, rated a good chance to win the National intercollegiate title next week. He is a junior at Northwestern.

The only casualty among the ranked players Monday was Jack Kramer, fifth-seeded, who lost to William Reedy, Los Angeles, 6-4, 8-2, 6-2. Kramer is entered from Winter Park, Fla.

* * *

Top-seeded Don McNeill won three sets with the loss of only three games, putting the champion today against Gerald Crowther of Hermose, Calif.

Six Qualify For P.G.A. Tournament

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Six Ohio golfers today qualified to compete in the National Professional Golfers association tournament at Denver, July 7-13.

* * *

Tony Penna of Dayton topped the list with a 76-71—146 at the Scioto Country club yesterday. Two strokes behind was Steve Zappe, Springfield professional, who carded a 73-75—148, and Rod Munday of Toledo, who reversed Zappe's scores for a 148.

* * *

Earl Stinchcomb of Ashtabula and Herman Keiser of Akron tied for fourth and fifth place with 150s. Stinchcomb had 76-74 and Keiser 77-73.

A playoff was needed to decide the sixth place. Gene Marchi of Dayton and Johnny Maltutic of Cleveland had 151s. On the first playoff hole. Marchi bagged a par four to defeat Maltutic, who needed a bogey five.

MEET AUG. 4

COLUMBUS — (UP) — More than 1,000 members of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America will meet at the organization's 33rd annual convention Aug. 4-7 at Ohio State university.

Demonstrations and tests on a 35-acre plot of land were scheduled for the meeting, and exhibits of at least 80 new varieties of vegetables were planned.

Here's One Fish Story Where The Fisherman Wins

DALLAS, Tex.—(INS)—Here's a fish story where the fisherman had the last laugh, and not the game warden as usual:

One of the state's hawkeyes was strolling around Dallas county fishing locations, and saw a negro with a tremendous catfish.

"I'll give you two dollars for that fish," offered the minion of the law. When the negro demurred, the man raised the ante to five dollars.

The deal was closed, and the warden, with a gleam in his eye, declared:

"Now you're under arrest. You just sold me a fish and you don't have a license to sell fish."

"Yo're wrong, boss," grinned the Negro.

Sure enough, he produced the necessary license. And he kept the five dollars despite his would-be captor's protests.

Claim Holders Of Old Mines Sought By U. S.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The Interior department is conducting one of the largest and the most widespread manhunts on record in an effort to find approximately 50,000 holders of early mine claims in the west.

The hunt by the department's agents to find their men is being conducted in connection with more than 8,000,000 acres of public land for defense purposes.

The search is carried on to afford, "full protection for the rights of early claimants or their successors," the department said. Voluminous county records must be searched to ascertain who claims the land, and then individual notice must be served if the government intends to use the land for defense purposes.

If it is unusually difficult to find a claimant, the department publishes its intent, and, if the claimant still cannot be found, seizure of the land for defense purposes follows.

THEATERS

Sky Thrills.

Thrilling scenes in the sky are depicted in "I Wanted Wings," continuing at the Ohio, as hundreds of air cadets go through manuevers above March, Kelly and Randolph Field. Produced with the co-operation of the Army Air corps the picture tells the story of three airmen and their training at the hands of Brian Donlevy. Ray Milland, Wayne Morris and William Holden play the trio and the romantic interest is furnished by Constance Moore, as a girl photographer, and Veronica Lake as a blond charmer.

* * *

Dramatic Story.

Photographed against a Swedish locale of great beauty, Joan Crawford's starring vehicle, "A Woman's Face," playing at the Madison, tells a dramatic story of a woman turned from a life of crime by plastic surgery that restores her beauty. Influenced for evil by a madman, played by Conrad Veidt, the woman forgets her hate when beauty returns. Melvyn Douglas plays opposite Miss Crawford in the picture that is acclaimed as one of the outstanding productions of 1941.

First Run Western.

Gene Autry in "The Singing Hill," another adventure of the western star in a first run feature tops the bill at the Ritz. Smiley Burnette and Mary Lee are in the cast. "Virginia," Technicolor production with Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray is the co-attraction.

* * *

Yehudi's Inventor.

Jerry Colonna, inventor of "the little man who wasn't there," none other than, "Yehudi," has a featured role in "Sis Hopkins," continuing at the Park. Bob Crosby and his orchestra and a contingent of funsters headed by Judy Canova, Cobina of the radio team, Brenda and Cobina, and Charlie Butterworth make this rollicking story of a hillbilly who becomes a hit in a collegiate production. The "East Side Kids" appear in the second production, "Pride of the Bowery."

CADDY SHORTAGE

PITTSBURGH—(UP)—Because of increased defense production, local golfers are facing a shortage of experienced caddies to carry their clubs.

Youths who formerly were chasing the players' balls from tee to green, are now more and more being employed in Pittsburgh district industrial plants, working on huge government armament orders.

LET'S GO TO THE BALL GAME---HELP MANSFIELD'S BLIND!

As a means of raising money to provide help in the form of treatment and equipment for Mansfield's sightless and near-sightless persons, the Mansfield Lions Club has undertaken sponsoring a double-header Ohio State League baseball game Wednesday night at the Fairgrounds.

DOUBLE-HEADER • MANSFIELD BRAVES vs. FOSTORIA • FIRST GAME 7 P. M.

Besides offering a double-bill program of baseball, the Lions club will present a VALUABLE GIFT during special ceremonies to be held just before the start of the second game.

One other feature is also being offered baseball fans there that night. Results of the Joe Louis-Billy Conn heavyweight championship fight will be broadcast at the game.

TICKETS

Tickets for the ball game may be obtained from any member of the club or at the Mansfield Athletic Supply company, 52 Park avenue west; City News Agency, North Main street and at the Swank and Watson store, 89 North Main street. Tickets sell at 50 cents.

THE LIONS CLUB

The Mansfield Lions club, organized six months ago, is a civic organization affiliated with an international organization which has assistance to blind persons as its principal civic objective.

TRADERS SCAN WAR NEWS FOR TIP ON STOCKS

Await Axis Retaliation on Asset Freezing and Consulate Closing.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — The stock market made idle stabs at recovery in today's session but many leaders failed to make an impression. While a few oils, rails, motors and specialties, managed to acquire small plus marks after a hesitant opening, numerous issues were unchanged or off a shade near the second hour.

Although Wall Street was not particularly bearish, brokers said, the disposition of most potential share purchases was to keep commitments at a minimum pending war developments and possible retaliation of the Axis powers to the move of the United States in "freezing" European assets here and ordering German consuls and other Nazis out of the country.

Another sharp increase in banking loans to commerce, industry and agriculture, as summarized in the statement of federal reserve members in 101 cities for the week ended June 11, was attributed by market analysts mainly to the feverish swing of the defense program. This item was up $58,000,000 in the week to a new high for the move at $5,764,000,000.

SUBDUE HAWKERS

COLUMBUS, O.—(U.P.)—In the interests of national defense, Columbus fruit and vegetable hawkers must be more quiet.

Such loud cries, said Police Corporal Edgar N. Butler, interrupt the daylight hours sleep of night workers in factories engaged in defense orders, lower the workers' efficiency by sleep interruption and reduce their efficiency on defense projects.

USO Launches Fund Campaign

Scenes like this are familiar in Mansfield and Richland county today as United Service Organization solicitors seek to raise $6,500 towards a nation-wide goal of $10,765,000 to provide wholesome recreation centers for men in national defense service. Richland county has 400 men of its own in training already. One of the 300 solicitors engaged in house to house calls is Mrs. Stanley Richardson, precinct captain in the First Ward. She is shown here explaining the purpose of the drive to Miss Teresa M. Peiffer, a prospective contributor, at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

POPEYE—"Here's Looking At You!"

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—Unbeliever.

By Harold Gray

BUT THIS BILL SLAGG! HE TOLD YOU OF THOSE TWO WHO PAID HIM TO STEAL THE SECRET DRAWINGS—QUITE SO, ASP.
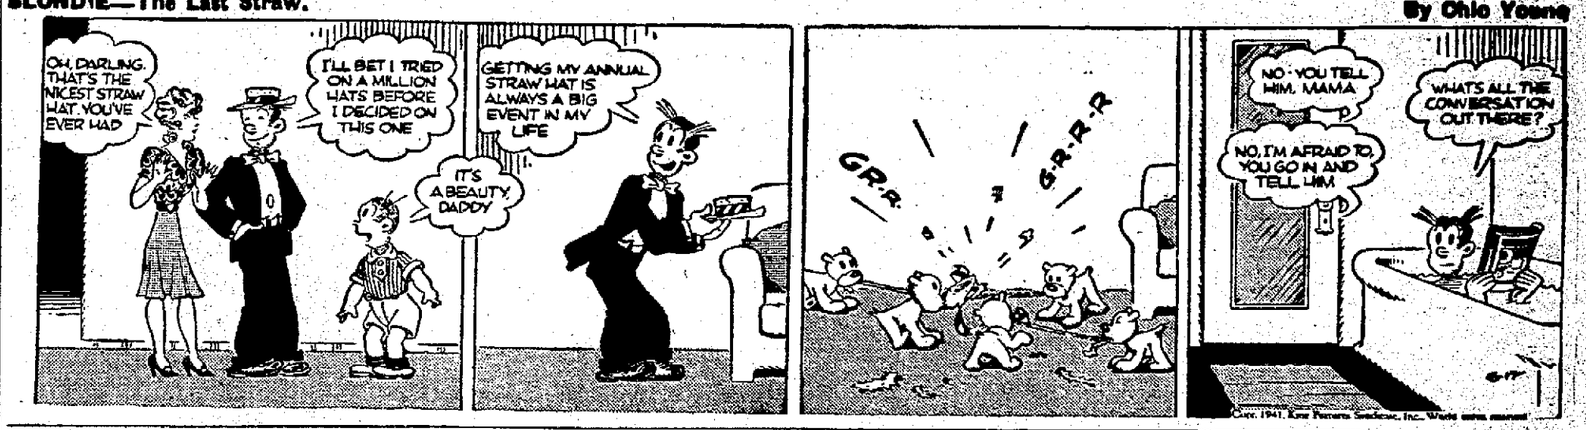
6-17-41
I TELL YOU, PUNJAB, HE MUST BE A CHANGED MAN, AN HONEST MAN, SINCE THAT OPERATION ON HIS BRAIN—
AS TO THAT, I SHALL WAIT AND SEE—
YOU'RE A HARD MAN, PUNJAB— YOU TRUST NO ONE—
QUITE TRUE! SO I HAVE LIVED THUS LONG AND ENJOYED ROBUST HEALTH—
BUT ARE YOU GOING TO SUSPECT THAT CHAP ALWAYS, NO MATTER WHAT HE DOES TO PROVE HIS HONESTY?
FIRST LET HIM PROVE HIS WORTH TO ME—IF HE CAN—

BLONDIE—The Last Straw.

By Chic Young



OH, DARLING, THAT'S THE NICEST STRAW HAT YOU'VE EVER HAD I'LL BET I TRIED ON A MILLION HATS BEFORE I DECIDED ON THIS ONE
IT'S A BEAUTY, DADDY
GETTING MY ANNUAL STRAW HAT IS ALWAYS A BIG EVENT IN MY LIFE
G-R-R-R
G-R-R-R
NO - YOU TELL HIM, MAMA
NO, I'M AFRAID TO, YOU GO IN AND TELL HIM
WHAT'S ALL THE CONVERSATION OUT THERE?

PAM—A "Lead!"

By A. W. Brewerton

WELL, I DIDN'T HAVE MUCH LUCK AT POLICE HEADQUARTERS! I WONDER WHAT DAVID WOULD DO NEXT?
6-17
HE'D FIND A "LEAD" SOMEWHERE! MAYBE I GAVE UP TOO EASILY AT—YES, —WHEN THAT MAN GAVE HIS REPORT, HE ....
—YES... THERE MIGHT BE SOMETHING TO BE LEARNED THERE.... I...I'M GOING TO CALL THE LIEUTENANT AGAIN...
HE MAY THINK I'M CRAZY BUT WHOEVER LOST THIS MONEY DIDN'T JUST LAY DOWN AND QUIT! NO ONE WOULD!
HELLO - POLICE HEADQUARTERS?— I'D LIKE TO SPEAK TO LIEUTENANT DONNELLY, PLEASE!

THE NEBBS—Guessing.

By Sol Hess

THE NORTHVILLE PAPER CARRIES A BIG STORY ABOUT THE RESCUE OF CLEO NEBB AND ABOUT HER COMING HERE TO LIVE WITH US
6-17
AND I GUESS EVERYBODY IS WONDERING WHAT CLEO IS LIKE
WHOSE BUSINESS IS IT? BUT I GUESS YOU CAN'T STOP FOLKS FROM WONDERING—WONDERING SORT OF EXERCISES THE BRAIN
SHE MUST BE AT LEAST 18 YEARS OLD, FIGURING ON STEVE'S LETTER TO NEBB ABOUT HIS DIVORCE

TURKEY SPURS VAST PROGRAM FOR INDUSTRY

Steel Plants Are Expanded and Hydro Projects Are Planned.

ISTANBUL—(U.P.)—From time to time grimy, rough appearing strangers are seen in the hotels at Ankara and Istanbul. They are engineers from Turkey's new British-built steel works at Karabuk, north of Ankara not far from the Black Sea coast, and evidence that Turkey is not letting the war stop plans to build an industrial nation.

Some of the grimy strangers are Englishmen, but increasing numbers are Turks, many of them trained at schools for mechanics and construction workers at Ankara. Turkey is trying to develop a class of skilled workers, instead of being dependent, as hitherto, on peasant labor which returns to the villages during planting and harvest seasons.

Thus far only one of three blast furnaces at Karabuk is operating, but it is hoped that soon the plant will turn out 500 tons of steel daily. Specialties such as rails and pipes are to go into production and plans to establish a motor assembly plant nearby have been announced. The importance the Turks attach to Karabuk is indicated by the fact President Ismet Inonu has visited it twice in six months and it was shown to the generals representing the British Middle Eastern Command in January.

At the same time Turkey is planning a network of hydro-electric plants which will develop mineral resources and bring power to every part of the country. One plant at Tchaghayk on the river Sakaria will develop iron ore deposits and provide power for Ankara and its environs.

Another at Kutahya will exploit lignite mines and give power to the whole area between Smyrna and Istanbul, while a third at Adala on the Ghediz river is to be finished by the end of this year and bring power to the Aegean coast region.

Of even greater immediate importance are plans to spend 50,000,000 Turkish pounds on flood control. Repeatedly throughout this winter floods in Thrace and around Smyrna, Antalya, Adana and Alexendrette have cut railway communications, destroyed villages and cattle.

LEND-LEASE ODYSSEY: What Happens On an Ex-U. S. Ship As It Starts On Its Way to Wars

(Here is the first and exclusive eye-witness story of the entry into the battle of the Atlantic of an American Lend-Lease war vessel, now a fighting unit of the British navy. A writer for the AP Feature Service and The News-Journal rode the vessel to Canada to give you this graphic account. Two more articles follow.)

(AP Feature Service Writer)

ABOARD H.M.S. ———, AT SEA—The lights of metropolitan New York blazed a friendly farewell.

Steaming close, the rest of our squadron was silhouetted against the western horizon, their running lights winking and weaving back of us as we slipped out of the harbor.

Ahead was the dark Atlantic. The bridge of our leading ship buzzed with efficient orders and responses.

The yellow reflection from New York cast dull streaks along the barrels of our big guns stripped for action on the decks below. Except for those deadly guns, it would have seemed like a pleasure trip.

Suddenly the senior officer present lowered his binoculars, issued terse orders.

"Darken ship! Show NO lights! Executive order!"

His voice was quiet, almost casual. But instantly the bridge went inky black. Signal men rushed to stations with long-barreled flashlights and winked pinpoints of light at our following train.

In a few moments all our warships disappeared in a well of darkness. All that remained of warm, bustling America was a faint yellow glow.

Here was blackout for you—in American waters!

'Practice?' 'Hardly.'

I moved closer to the shadowy form of our commanding officer. "Practice?" I asked.

"Hardly," he said. 'A British ship takes it for granted the enemy may be anywhere. There's no point in making a target of these fine ships your government has turned over to us."

"Target?"

"Yes, you see, a submarine is rather blind at night. Unless somebody gives him a light to aim at—"

No need to finish the sentence. The sub commander who could sink a "Lend-Lease" ship before it had been in British hands more than a few hours would be a national hero in Germany. And so—we were dark.

In those few minutes I saw and felt for the first time the difference between a world at war and my own United States so close behind me.

I had come aboard this former Coast Guard cutter the night before, soon after it had been transferred from the United States to the Royal Navy. They told me the ceremony was impressive.

What had been a U.S.S. became an H.M.S. The American crew had decked her out in dark war paint.

Gone was the gleaming white coat of a Coast Guard vessel. They had loaded her with guns, wired her for automatic blackouts at night. She was complete down to the last knife and fork, even to the electric refrigerator in the ward room. And her decks were coated with crushed granite for sure-footed action against an enemy.

Then a quiet, disciplined English crew took over a vessel they'd never seen before, spun her wheel, turned her knobs, snapped her switches, oiled her guns. They'd done it as casually and confidently as I'd turn the spigot on my shower at home.

When I stepped across the gangplank, I was greeted by an officer, and taken to the ward room below, where I met my ship mates.

AN EXCLUSIVE PICTURE of English crew taking former U. S. warship out of New York harbor. Pictures in this series are the only ones ever obtained for publication under such circumstances.

SPECIALTY: British navy accents signal work of all kinds. Signalmen do no other work. Here signalman is using an American device, flags.

LAST TRACE: U. S. ships, painted white, have white anchors. A British tar paints anchor gray, removes last bit of peacetime identification.

The executive officer reminded me that formality was absurd in wartime, bade me make myself comfortable.

Soon the commanding officer came down, gave me the same cordial greeting, told me I had the run of the ship—even to his excellent shower.

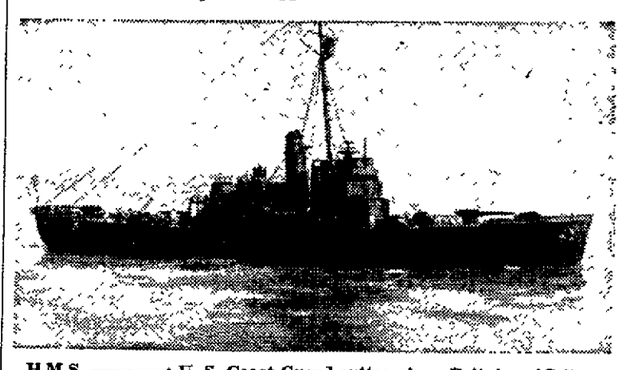
When my American taxi-driver came below to collect his fare, he wished me well, as if he expected I'd never be seen alive again. My new friends ribbed me unmercifully about that. And we sat down to dinner.

In one of those bright English drawing room conversations I discovered that the departing American officers had introduced the English ward room officers to poker, and left with something of a profit.

"We'd like to take the time to get it back from you," said one. "But we've got to handle this ship."

As for America, they liked best our women, our coffee, our apple pie, our night clubs, and our newspapers.

TOMORROW: Action Stations!



H.M.S. ———: U. S. Coast Guard cutter given Britain. AP Feature Service Writer Beatty sailed on a vessel like this one.

Warns Of Threat To Panama Canal In Event Of War

HARRISBURG — (INS) — The Panama Canal, America's lifeline between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, "probably would be destroyed in time of war," in the opinion of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

Discussing the strategic value of Antarctic exploration, Admiral Byrd pointed out that he had established a base on Palmerland which is only 450 miles from South America and it had "ideal" facilities for a harbor and naval base.

He indicated that establishment of such naval bases would be invaluable because of the "vulnerability" of the Panama Canal.

Admiral Byrd contrasted the North and South Pole by explaining that the North Pole was located in the center of an ocean 10,000 feet deep while the South Pole was situated in the center of a plateau 10,000 feet high.

Coal deposits in the Antarctic, Admiral Byrd said, could probably supply the world when the present supply was exhausted.

Seek to Perfect New Automatic Home Furnace

COLUMBUS—(INS)—A new kind of home furnace—one that will burn coal without smoke and remove its own ashes as well as feed its own fuel supply—is the goal of research men at Batelle Memorial Institute.

The completely automatic furnace, which would require absolutely no attention and which would operate more economically than any heating plant ever devised, is one of the ends of a new coal research program sponsored jointly by coal dealers associations, leading coal-carrying railroads and industrial coal companies.

Subscriptions totaling more than $200,000 already have been received to finance the program—enough to carry the project for three years.

Other objectives of the program include: A nearly-automatic, smokeless hand-fired heater for low-cost homes. A more economic method of dust-proofing coal. Heating of metals and ceramics with direct coal firing, instead of gas and oil, and A method of converting coal directly and simply into gas.

62 RECEIVE AWARDS AS GIRL SCOUTS STAGE ANNUAL RALLY

More than 200 Girl Scouts thronged South Park today for the annual Mansfield council rally. They participated in troop demonstrations, shared in the presentation of 62 awards, and contributed pennies to the Juliette Low Memorial fund as a measure of creating international good-will among Girl Scouts.

Mrs. John W. Graham, Girl Scout commissioner, distributed the awards after presenting the scouts with an American flag purchased by the Girl Scout council for the use of all troops.

Five-year stripes, denoting five years' active membership, were presented to six girls, Alice Lamoreux, Louanne Berger, Helen Meihack, Ann Lersh, Velma King and Katherine Malone.

Second class badges were presented to 20 scouts and service pins for special community projects were given to 36 members.

Scout activities were dramatized by several troops including Brownie packs and the work of the organization was summarized in an original playlet, "What Girl Scouting Means," presented by Troop 9, directed by Miss Kathleen Sturges.

Troop 11 staged a playlet dealing with Juliette Low, founder of the Girl Scouts. Mrs. Gordon Watson and Miss Barbara Hartman directed.

First aid and fire building demonstrations were given by Troop 6, in charge of Mrs. J. W. Seitz and Mrs. R. D. Iden, and Troop 2, directed by Mrs. Howard Diller and Mrs. P. C Davis and Mrs. G. R. Masquelier.

A demonstration of shepherds' pipes was given by Scouts of Troop 5, who have been making, tuning and playing the pipes this year as a project directed by Miss Helen Hartman. Mrs. Richard Fensch leads the troop.

Miss Eleanor Bond, Girl Scout executive secretary, worked with the following committee on general arrangements, Mrs. P. C. Davis, Mrs. G. R. Masquelier, Mrs. R. A. LeFevre, Mrs. J. W. Seitz, Mrs. Richard Fensch and Mrs. R. D. Iden.

Awards were presented to the following Scouts: second class badges, Marion Gilbert, Portia Schiller, Mary Kathryn Rust, Ann Parsons, Ann Burns, Hazel Donaldson, Betty Brook, Marianne Bahl, Virginia McMichael, Doris Alverson, Patricia Herr, Joan Senert, Irene Wilhelm, Louis Black, Marjorie White, Margaret Walery, Eileen McBride, Doris Bury, Margaret Burns, Beatrice Walters.

Service pins: Janice Carter, Maxine Hawk, Joan Perl, Kathryn Ann Fensch, Mary Margaret Buhr, Kathryn Ann Schaefer, Eileen Schuler, Ruth Ann Wolf, Betty Flockencler, Barbara Cross, Felicia Burkett, Edith Stretch.

Frances Erndt, Esetlla Chamberlain, Jeanne Brook, Carol Ann Spencer, Maxine Scheidler, Margaret Walery, Dixie Scoles, Dorothy Buck, Alice Betz, Gloria Tucker, Ruth Swisher, Mabel Emerson, Shirley Christiansen, Marabelle McCollough, Janice McCollough, Eleanor Brook, Ruth Brook, Elaine Christiansen, Patricia Beasore, Dorothy Hartson, June Glathart, Damaris Clark, Eleanor Fox and Mary Roadpouch.

Quartet Concoct A Novel Swindle, But to No Avail

COLUMBUS —(INS)— The city slicker who sold the Brooklyn bridge to the gullible traveller had nothing on this Negro quartet. Police charge them with dismantling a four-story building, carting away the material in a truck, and then selling it back piece by piece to the original owner.

The youthful quartet allegedly carted away plumbing fixtures, metal sheating, window and door frames, radiators, steam pipes, and even elevator equipment, and then sold the materials for junk to the Goldberg Iron company.

The four youths, Goan Pickett, 19; Leanard Hebon, 25; Charles Cooper, 19 and Frank Dunlap, 19, were arrested while tearing up the floor of the building, police said.

Brought to headquarters, they assertedly confessed carting five truckloads of material away from the building before their arrest. They were held under $10,000 bond each.

Commuter Chalks Up 50 Years Of Daily Traveling

BOSTON —(INS)— Fifty years a commuter on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad between Canton and Boston, Ernest M. Leavitt, 65, Canton, wants to ride in a new locomotive.

In an impromptu ceremony at South Station on the occasion of Leavitt's final ride as a commuter, Howard S. Palmer, president of the railroad, greeted the honored passenger and presented him with an apropriately inscribed billfold.

He is a native of Canton and started riding on the trains of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad between that community and Boston in 1891 while a student. He continued to commute via the railroad until his retirement as an assistant cashier of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston.

Palmer, when informed Leavitt would like to ride on one of the new locomotives, promised the privilege would be accorded him as soon as possible.

— SAXOPHONE DEVICE —

ELKHART, Ind. — (INS) — Although he never has blown a note on a saxophone, Eugene Sander holds patent rights on an instrument with padless keys that may revolutionize saxophone construction. Perfected after more than two years of labor, Sander's invention replaces the customary pads with tone boosters working in conjunction with tone booster rings mounted on the body of the instrument.
